Dauphin Conservation Farmer Of Year Reveals Erosion Control Challenges

Streambank Work Controls Damage From January Flooding

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Who will forget the winter of '96? Larry Shade certainly won't.

Shade remembers the tremendous flooding the weekend of Jan. 19-21, when floodwater from melting snow and ice carved out a "40-50 foot broad river" that ran through a field, ripping up streambanks, tearing up sod, and depositing silt everywhere.

Shade said of the flooding, which also damaged homes, boat marinas, and dams in several counties in the Susquehanna Valley, "It tore a bridge out in Harrisburg, you know — and it sure ain't going to let a little grass stop it."

Acts of Mother Nature can easily destroy efforts of even the most stringent soil stewards. And there's nothing erosion control experts and conservation planners can do about it.

Land Preservation Celebrates Achievements, More Money Pledged

LOU ANN GOOD

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Farm owners, public officials, and members of the Lancaster County Preservation Board and the Lancaster Farmland Trust celebrated a landmark achievement at the Franklin and Marshall College Field House on March 22.

Although the celebration was intended to laud the preservation of 245 farms and 20,000 acres, the 350 people in attendance were in for an additional surprise when the county commissioners presented a check for $500,000 to be used to preserve more farmland.

With the $2.9 million allocation from the state and $1.25 million previously pledged from the county, the nine-year waiting list of farms slated for preservation is expected to be speeded up. Sec. of Agriculture Brosius also indicated that the U.S. Farm Bill that is expected to pass allocates $35 million to be used for farmland preservation over a three-year period. A portion of that money will be relayed to the county.

When the Lancaster County Agricultural Preserve Board first formed, many observers thought that farmland preservation was too controversial to succeed.

Amos Funk, a founding member, recalled the obstacles and the frustration in trying to influence farmers and officials to become interested in the program. He often questioned fellow board members, "Are we getting anywhere? Are we going to see anything come out of this?"

Last Friday, an exurberant Funk said, "I'm glad I lived long enough

National Cattlemen Post Advisory On 'Mad Cow Disease'

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — On Tuesday this week, the National Cattlemen's Beef Association posted the following advisory regarding Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE), also referred to as "Mad Cow's Disease":

Since the British Ministry of Health's statement on March 24 indicating the possibility of a link between Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE) in cattle and Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (CJD) in humans, the issue has made headlines around the world.

However, the Ministry also pointed out that there was no direct evidence of a link. In addition, the Ministry noted that steps were taken in 1989 to ensure that meat and milk are safe and they remain safe today.

Based upon 10 years of monitoring and surveillance data in the United States, we can confirm that there is no BSE in the U.S. and there are a number of long-standing, aggressive programs to prevent BSE from ever entering the U.S. Consumers should be reassured about the safety of U.S. beef.

The USDA Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) imposed a ban in 1989 on the importation of live ruminants (cattle, sheep, etc.) or products from countries where BSE has been found. In addition, the USDA Food Safety Inspection Service said that no beef has been imported from the UK since 1985.

In addition, since 1986 the U.S. has maintained a sophisticated and aggressive BSE surveillance program involving 250 APHIS veterinarians who conduct field investigations of suspicious symptoms. In addition, more than 60 veterinary diagnostic laboratories around the country work on BSE surveillance in cooperation with the National Veterinary Services Laboratories in Ames, Iowa.

The National Cattlemen's Beef Association is working with scientists and appropriate government agencies to consider additional steps to ensure we are not at risk

While spring has arrived according to the calendar, the weather doesn't let go of winter. But we saw a tractor with rubber tires, a tractor with steel wheels, and quite a few horse and mule teams in the fields this week, around the Lancaster Farming office.

In the photo, our Amish neighbor had his team working along Rockvale Road east of Strasburg Pike late Wednesday afternoon. The bright low sunlight cast deep shadows across the fields and highlighted the white farm buildings in the background. By Thursday, the snow, sleet, and rain took away the thought of spring, and did nothing for the farmer's plowing and planting disease that overtakes every true person of the soil about this time each year. Surely the weather will catch up with the calendar soon. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

Delmarva Broiler

MARCH 27, 1996

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds remained generally slow. Seller offerings were fully adequate to ample with sales noted at 45 and 46 cents to stimulate activity. Live supplies were mostly moderate; weights varied by plant in a full range of light to heavy. Processing schedules were moderate to heavy. Less than truckiot asking prices were unchanged at 49 to 61 cents. Trade sentiment was barely steady to weak. In the parts complex, all items were adequate or available. Wings were burdensome at some plants. Other items varied from fully adequate to ample with discounting used in many instances to move excess supplies.

Truckiot buying interest was dull and disappointing. Offerings continued to build and more often than not more negotiable than usual. Promotional interest was spotty, but traders were not enthusiastic as interest centered around more traditional holiday items. Retail and distributive movement was quiet and typical for the end of the month. Trade sentiment was nervous and very cautious.

NY Phil Frozen Eggs

MARCH 22, 1996

Prices were generally unchanged. The market tone was steady. Demand remained centered on less-than-truckiot volumes. Floor stocks were adequate and continued to clear well. Shell egg supplies were generally adequate at unchanged prices with some increased movement of surplus light sized eggs into breaker channels. Edible liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending March 16, 1996 were 2% more than last week, and 1% less than the same week a year ago.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
MARCH 27, 1996

Tight stocks, weather and exports providing the thrust for a Spring price rally for grains and soybeans. Bids already starting out at a relatively very high level this year. Wheat slid back a little today after a two day steep climb. Corn very long winded and higher with very few exceptions since the first of the year. Soybeans got a good push from more export orders today. Wheat 2-3 cents lower. Corn 2-5 cents higher. Sorghum 3-5 cents higher. Soybeans 2-5 cents higher. Continued very dry weather in the Western Combelt, High Plains, Southern Plains and Southwest. Pastures, hay and Hard Red Winter Wheat suffering. Kansas wheat crop now in a very critical stage and without more than one or two days of one inch rains prospects look dim. Some extension personnel estimating only 50 percent crop, if no rain falls in the next few days and 6-10 day forecast not promising much. Plenty of moisture Southeast, Northwest and Central Combelt, while Eastern Combelt and East had their cup runneth over with snow this Winter. Grain stocks the smallest in several years and Friday's USDA grain stock report may give a better picture as to just how tight. Planting intentions also in this report and some are thinking "all the corn I can". However, sunshine with Spring temperatures and two weeks of good general rains could work wonders. We are not going to run out of grains or soybeans. If prices get high enough some ghost bins will open up. Many farmers have their long range crop plans and rotation systems in tact and will not make any drastic sweeping overwhelming changes. Corn is the darling right now. We are in a global market and when prices get high enough foreign demand will slow up.

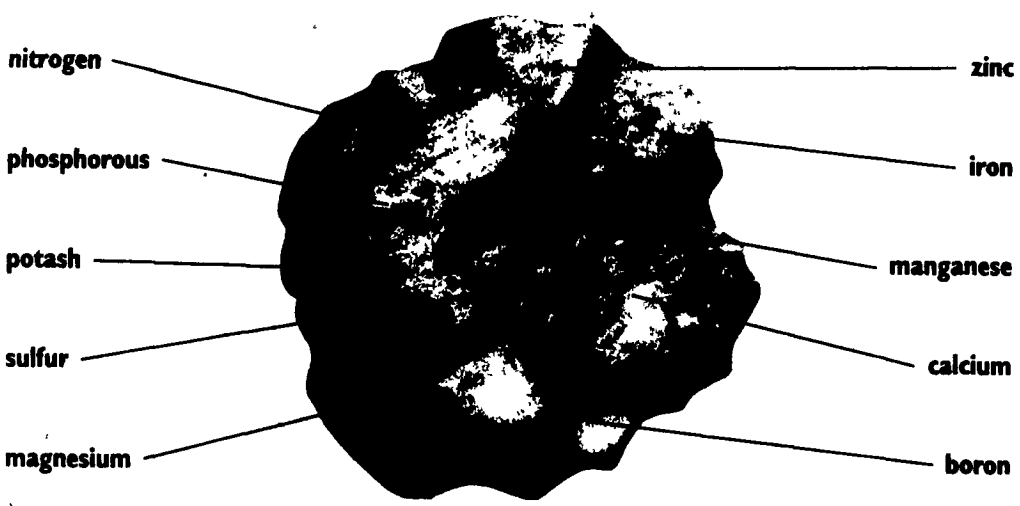
Lebanon Extra Plant Food

For over 47 years, farmers have been choosing Lebanon Extra for premium homogeneous/ammoniated plant food. Lebanon Extra is ideal for use in row applications where nutrient safety and consistency is crucial to yields. And its homogeneous/ ammoniated granules offer superior performance over so-called "Custom-formulated" blends.



A blend of raw materials can result in uneven feeding. Unlike homogeneous/ammoniated granules which deliver all the primary nutrients and micronutrients in each particle — ensuring even distribution for consistent performance.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

FULL SPROUTING GRASS MOON, APRIL 3.

INTERNATIONAL CHILDREN'S BOOK DAY

Everyone knows about All Fools Day on April 1 and Easter on April 7 this year, but did you know April 2 is International Children's Book Day? It's celebrated on the birthday of Hans Christian Andersen, born April 2, 1805, in Denmark. Andersen made his fame from his imaginative fairy tales, such as "The Ugly Duckling," "The Little Mermaid," and "The Emperor's New Clothes." He'd originally hoped to become an actor, but was unsuccessful. His poems caught the attention of King Frederick VI, who agreed to educate him at public expense, and then agreed to an educational travel leave.

"Get your facts first, then you can distort them as you please." – Mark Twain

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ To make juicing a lemon easier, firmly roll it between your palm and the countertop.

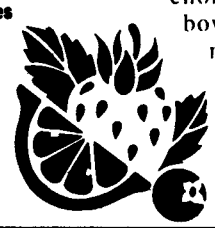
CHILDREN'S FRUIT "SOUP"

- 3 cups orange juice
- 3 teaspoons lemon juice
- 3/4 cup vanilla yogurt
- 1 tablespoon honey
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 large banana, sliced
- 1 cup any berries
- 1/2 cup kiwi slices or orange slices
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts (optional)



Mix the orange and lemon juice, yogurt, honey, and vanilla with a hand whisk or blender. Arrange sliced bananas, berries, oranges (or other fruits of your choice) in individual bowls. Spoon yogurt mixture over all. Top with chopped nuts, if desired. Even young children can help make this treat.

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Two rainbows at a time promise rain.

If St. Vincent's Day (April 5) is fair, there will be more water than wine.

First three days of April foggy, expect a flood in June.

OPINION

Got Milk!

"GOT MILK?" It's the punch line to a cute series of ads paid for by dairy farmers with an assessment on the milk they produce.

Got milk? What if the answer were "no?" Residents of New York City can tell you how it felt, during the blizzard of '96, when dairy cases were empty, when shoppers fought over the last milk, and guards had to be posted on delivery trucks.

Got milk? Americans are lucky to have abundant, good food at reasonable cost. American consumers expect this. But we've all seen films of Russians, or Bosnians, or Africans, queued up, waiting for food.

Got milk? Dairymen get an average $13.00 per cwt. for their milk. Average cost to produce that milk is $16.00 per cwt. To stay in business, you need a profit. Continued losses, and you're out of business.

Got milk? Farm families do not know a 40-hour week. Their children do not benefit from child labor laws. Farm families work from well before dawn to exhaustion at night. So we can have milk.

Got milk? We enjoy cheap, wholesome, and plentiful food, thanks to unpaid and underpaid American farm family labor. And today, American farm families find they cannot afford to continue producing that food for those prices.

Got milk? What if the answer were "no?" Where would we be without farm commodities? Without the food and fiber that farmers produce?

Got milk? What if the answer were "no?" If farmers go out of business, who will replace them? Who else has the versatility, the ingenuity, the know-how to operate a farm?

We have got to educate the consumer — and we are all consumers — that without farmers, there will be no milk. Without farms, the grocery shelves will be empty. Without farms, Americans will go hungry. And without farmers — their ingenuity, their versatility and their know-how — there may be land, there may be seed, there may be animals, there may be equipment, but there will not be productive farms. Once gone, the farming community will be hard to bring back.

Got milk: I think we know the answer. If we want to continue to have milk, meat, grain, fruits, vegetables we've got to make sure that farmers make a profit. Katherine Shelly, Susquehanna County Farm Bureau.

To Use Safety Features

While headlines in news articles and ads may highlight the ever-increasing productivity of new farm equipment, the revolution in safety has been just as dramatic.

Guards and shields are being designed to allow easy service access to the components they protect so people will be more likely to keep the shields in place. Handholds and footsteps have been positioned for easy reach and designed for non-slip gripping.

Equipment controls are more clearly marked with colors and symbols standardized throughout the industry. The controls are easier to operate to minimize fatigue and improve control.

Lighting systems have been improved to help you see and be seen. Various safety interlocks and operator present controls reduce the possibility of starting in gear or working on running equipment.

Safety is one area where manufacturers set aside their competitive strategies and work together to offer safety equipment to farmers. Industry councils meet regularly to discuss safety issues and share thoughts on ways to make all farm equipment safer.

To Cater To The Cow

High producing cows spend most of their time doing three basic things: standing to be milked, standing to eat, and lying down chewing their cud and making milk.

With this in mind, Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, states a dairy farmer's goals should be:

• Encourage cows to maximize feed intake. Each pound of dry matter a cow consumes has the capability of producing about two and half pounds of milk, provided the ration is properly balanced and the cow is healthy and comfortable.

• Encourage cows to lie down and chew their cud. When they chew their cud, they produce more saliva which keeps their rumen functioning at peak efficiency, thus producing more nutrients for milk production. Also, when cows lie down, more blood flows through their udders. This blood is carrying the nutrients they need to make milk.

• Minimize the time cows are standing up and away from feed. In other words, keep fresh feed in the manager all the time. Do not keep cows standing more than one hour waiting to be milked. Make sure feed and water are easily accessible to cows all the time, especially after milking.

• Provide cows with a non-threatening environment so they may eat and lie down with the assurance that they will be safe.

To Use IPM

An abbreviation frequently in the news is IPM. This is short for Integrated Pest Management.

Dr. Tim Elkner, extension horticultural agent, reminds us that IPM involves using chemical, biological, and cultural practices to provide effective and environmentally sound control of weeds and other pests.

Any type of farming enterprise could benefit from IPM. The potential advantages are both economical and environmental.

There are several things you need to keep in mind when setting up or evaluating an IPM program. First, an effective IPM program suppresses pests rather than eradicating them. Second, your IPM program must take into account the local environmental and ecological conditions.

Each operation's IPM program may be different to control the same pests. Finally, an effective IPM program takes time to develop and extra care to plan, implement and monitor. However, the time you devote to your program will surely pay for itself in the future.

GOOD REASONS FOR BAD DECISIONS

March 31, 1996

Background Scripture:
Luke 14:1-24
Devotional Reading:
Luke 14:7-14

Have you noticed how often in the parables of Jesus there seem to be such good reasons for bad decisions? It was concern for his own family that led the unforgiving servant to beg for a mercy he refused to give to others. It was a sense of fairness that caused the workers in the vineyard to grumble against the householder. It was fear of the Master's reactions that led the one-talent servant to bury his talent in the ground. All good reasons but bad decisions.

And in the parable of the great feast, what could be more logical than for invitees to ask to be excused so that one could: (1) take care of a newly-bought field, (2) another look after five yoke of oxen, (3) and a third to attend to his new wife? These are all good reasons, aren't they?

Yes, they would appear to be — just as many reasons we give for failing to respond to God's call. Look, God, you know I spend every waking moment on my job; there's no time for anything else. Father, you know if I had blown the whistle on my own company, I would've been out of a job and my family out on the street. Jesus, I couldn't afford to get involved; I've got to live in this neighborhood. These are all good reasons, too — as far as they go.

DIVINE VS. HUMAN REASONS

The problem with all of the above is that God and his children often see things very differntly. Jesus makes this point several times in Luke 14. Dining at the home of a local functionary, Jesus heals a man of dropsy. The lawyers and Pharisees present are outraged for they see this act as a violation on the Sabbath. Jesus does not: "Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath, or not?" Jesus asks them.

Then he tells another parable and makes it clear that God's view of honor and importance are quite different from ours. Take the humble place at the banquet table, he counsels. "For every one who exalts himself will be humbled, and he who humbles himself will be exalted" (14:11). But that is not the way we learn it, is it? The best seats go to those we judge to be the best people — even in churches.

Another difference can be discerned from our invitation list. Don't invite your friends and relative or rich neighbors, he says. "But when you give a feast, invite the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind, and you will be blessed, because they cannot repay you. You will be repaid at the resurrection of the just" (14:12-14). The wisdom of this world says, get your reward now!

REMOVING THE SCREENS

In the parable of the great feast, Jesus makes is plain that the great feast is the kingdom of heaven and these people are passing it up for much lesser things. And the very people they disdain the most — the poor, the helpless, the outcasts — will be there in their stead.

Their reasons are nothing more than excuses. The word "excuse" comes from the Latin ex causa, meaning "free of charge." They are the mental gymnastics by which we hope to free ourselves of the charges against us. The Rev. George Arthur Buttrick has said that "Everyone is prone to set a screen of lies between himself and reality. Life is a process of removing the screens so that in God's light shall we see light" (Ps. 36:9).

Jesus challenges us as he challenged his listeners to remove the screens that keep us from seeing the divine reality and stop giving good reasons for making bad decisions.

The Althouse will lead a group to the Holy Land, Oct, 9 to Nov. 2, 1996. Space limited. For information, write them at 4412 Shenandoah Ave., Dallas, TX 75205.

CHORE-TIME ...nobody knows more about feeding

Chore-Time Model ATF Feeder with polypropylene pan shown. Also available with galvanized steel pan.

The Right Choice in turkey feeders

RUGGED POLYPROPYLENE construction of Model ATF pan is available for permanent corrosion-proofing. Material has an ultra-smooth surface so feed and dirt won't stick, so it stays clean. Our polypropylene also has a special ultraviolet inhibitor. Liberal 5-year pan warranty! Ask for details.

FEED SAVER FEATURES: unique "V" pan shape lets you maintain a low feed level; feed-saver ring: 2 1/2" pan lip to catch feed.

FEED PAN DEPTH on Stage 3 Feeder is 5-1/2 inches; 8-week old birds or the largest toms can reach feed.

New Shape
The difference is the shape of the feeder's trough (at right). ULTRAFLO II's higher trough lip reduces feed waste by keeping it in the trough and not on the floor or in the pit.

The Right Choice in cage feeders

Chore-Time's popular ULTRAFLO® Cage Feeding System is now even more outstanding! We've developed and tested the second generation of ULTRAFLO feeders and named it the ULTRAFLO® II.

ULTRAFLO II offers you even greater reliability, durability, and outstanding feed-saving performance—up to 1 gram of feed per bird per day—over the original ULTRAFLO. And even the original ULTRAFLO was beating our competitors in feed savings!

So, join the cage feeding leader. Contact us today. Find out how Chore-Time and ULTRAFLO II can help you be a leader, too!

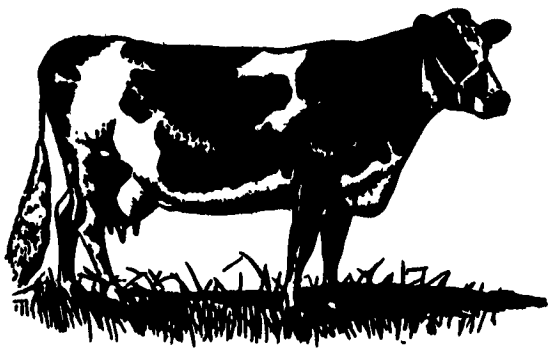
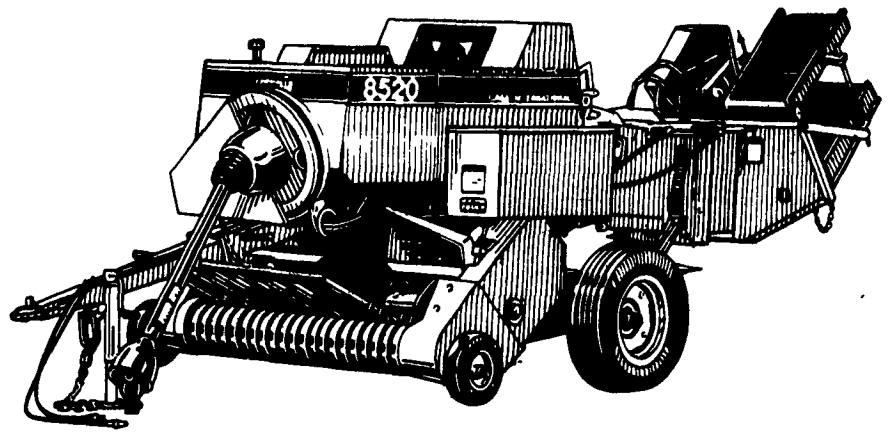
"Her" Choice





If Holsteins could talk, the conversation around the hay manger would be "Case IH Center Line Balers".

Why? More leaves per bale.

Our low profile pickup allows alfalfa hay to retain more dry leaves. We don't lift the windrow as high, saving leaves at the pickup. We also start to compress the hay before it enters the chamber to lock in leaves throughout the flake...leaves don't settle to the bottom and fall out the back of the baler to the degree of older style square balers.

More leaves means more milk, without increased overhead. Many studies show increased production of $1,000 per year over a milking herd of 100 with 2% leaf savings!

Case IH Center Line Balers...one of the quickest ways to increase milk production without adding cows. Improve your bottom line with improved leaf savings.

742 Edgewood Ave. Somerset, PA 15501

Bender Implement Company is located at 742 South Edgewood Avenue in Somerset, still on the site where brothers Al and George Bender, in 1934, started the business.

Owner Phil Hammond says Bender Implement today offers customers a tractor product line up to 215 horsepower.

The massive red CASE IH cab tractors sitting on the lot will grab your attention, whether or not, you have something specific on your mind.

Phil categorizes Bender's implement line into four groups: tillage, planting, hay and forage, and material handling.

"We carry a good inventory," he says. "We provide new and used equipment, have parts and repair service, and will do repairs in the field or in the shop." he said.

The service area, besides Somerset, saturates some five counties, crossing into neighboring Maryland to serve customers living beyond the Mason-Dixon line.

Twelve employees fill positions in management, services sales, parts and clerical areas. The company operates with a fleet of four vehicles -- one delivery and three service trucks -- and daily uses United Parcel Service (UPS) for outbound mailings.

Bender Implement, as in the past, continues to carry its line of large household appliances. Only now, the brand name is no longer International Harvestor as it was in former days.

"I used to milk cows," recalls Phil, "and I put the milk into an International cooler."

Vaccine Could Speed Brucellosis Eradication

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — The recent conditional approval of the RB51 brucellosis vaccine could play a big role in helping the National Brucellosis Eradication Program reach its goal of eradicating this troublesome disease by the end of 1998, indicated key leaders of the Livestock Conservation Institute.

Brucellosis, a contagious disease of cattle caused by the bacterium Brucella abortus, causes abortion and infertility in animals and undulant fever in humans. The brucellosis vaccine Strain 19, used in the eradication effort since the 1940s, gives protection against the bacteria but also induces antibodies that react in Standard Serological tests.

Tests have shown that RB51 provides similar protection while not causing the serologic response. As a result, RB51 could save time and money for veterinarians and others involved in the eradication effort.

"That's the biggest advantage, it doesn't produce titers," said Jon Johnson, chairman of LCI's Brucellosis Committee. "Until we can get a better handle on the false-positive situation, it will be hard to get rid of this disease."

Likewise, LCI First Vice Chairman of the Board Dr. John R. Ragan said the new vaccine should help.

"Certainly, the lack of diagnostic problems is a tremendous asset," Ragan said. "From what we know about it(RB51), there doesn't seem to be any downside.

"I would hope we could encourage people considering vaccine to use RB51 so we don't generate the costs associated with the titer problems."

Use of RB51 will tie in with the new USDA Policy on Calfhood Vaccination for Brucellosis, approved in 1995. That policy does not encourage routine calfhood vaccination in states and areas classified as free of brucellosis and it encourages states to rescind laws and regulations that mandate vaccination.

NRCS Has $3 Million For Flood Recovery

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) has received $3 million through the federal Emergency Watershed Protection Program (EWP) to help Pennsylvania communities repair damages caused by flooding, said State Conservationist Janet L. Oertly.

NRCS will use this money to fund construction costs for 125 projects in the following 23 counties: Bedford, Blair, Bradford, Cambria, Cameron, Centre, Clinton, Columbia, Franklin, Fulton, Huntingdon, Lackawanna, Luzerne, Lycoming, McKean, Mifflin, Pike, Potter, Somerset, Tioga, Warren, Wayne, and Wyoming.

Because the demand for funds exceeded the amount received, NRCS established a priority worksheet using data collected on-site by teams to determine which projects would be funded, Oertly said.

Points were assigned depending on the proximity of a home or business to a stream, or whether debris or deposition was blocking the stream channel. In addition, the workshop allowe for priority points for township roads and public utilities.

Only information gathered from the field was used to rank the sites, she said.

EWP, administered by the Natural Resources Conservation Service, helps communities recover from natural disasters by clearing debris-clogged waterways. The program also restores and stabilizes streambanks to prevent further damage and reduces the immediate threat or damage of life or property, such as homes, businesses, municipal roads, bridges, etc.

NRCS provides technical and financial assistance to these communities through the program. Local entities of government, such as a township, county or conservation district, requested assistance for emergency cleanup.

NRCS met the stringent EWP deadlines with able assistance from the Department of Environmental Protection's Bureau of Flood Protection Project, said State Conservation Engineer William Bowers. The bureau's staff prepared the designs and bid packages for local contracting. The staff will also inspect construction as it progresses. But there were others who assisted as well, he added.

"We approached this recovery work as a team effort," Bowers said. "We involved federal and state agencies, as well as local municipalities. Representatives served on inspection teams and helped us determine the needs. Because of this partnership, NRCS was able to submit its request for funds to USDA and get the work underway quickly to relieve the emergency situations."

NRCS will fund the following types of projects to assist communities with their recovery work:
• Piled debris on bridge openings.
• Blocked streams that cause them to change course, affecting homes and businesses. • Excessively eroding streambanks that endanger homes, businesses, and/or utilities.

With EWP projects, NRCS pays up to 75 percent of the costs to reduce threats to life and property. Local sponsores are responsible for the remaining 25 percent, Oertly said. They can cover their costs with funding or in-kind services. Only a local unit of government can request assistance through this program.

Oertly said 179 eligible projects in the state still remain to funded. If money is received for those sites, an additional seven counties can receive assistance. They are Adams, Cumberland, Dauphin, Lebanon, Schuylkill and Susquehanna.

Land Preservation Celebrates Achievements, More Money Pledged

to see this remarkable success. We have preserved 20,000 acres of the best farmland in the world."

Funk praised the community for working together and credited the county commissioners for supporting the movement before it was popular.

Sen. Noah Wenger was lauded for his commitment to the farmland preservation movement. "No one has worked harder," said Terry Kauffman, county commissioner, of Wenger's efforts to find innovative ways to free up money for farmland preservation.

County Commissioner Paul Thilbaut will assume Kauffman's spot on the Preserve board. Kauffman, Thilbaut, and County Commissioner Ron Ford referred to themselves as a triple team in support of farmland preservation.

A standing ovation was held for the most honored guests of the 350 in attendance — the farmers. Owners of the farms that have been preserved and those that are on the waiting list were invited to attend the celebration.

Although the preserve board was mocked in its beginning stages for its small amount of funding $250,000, the board now heads the fastest growing farmland preservation program in the nation and serves as a model for other states.

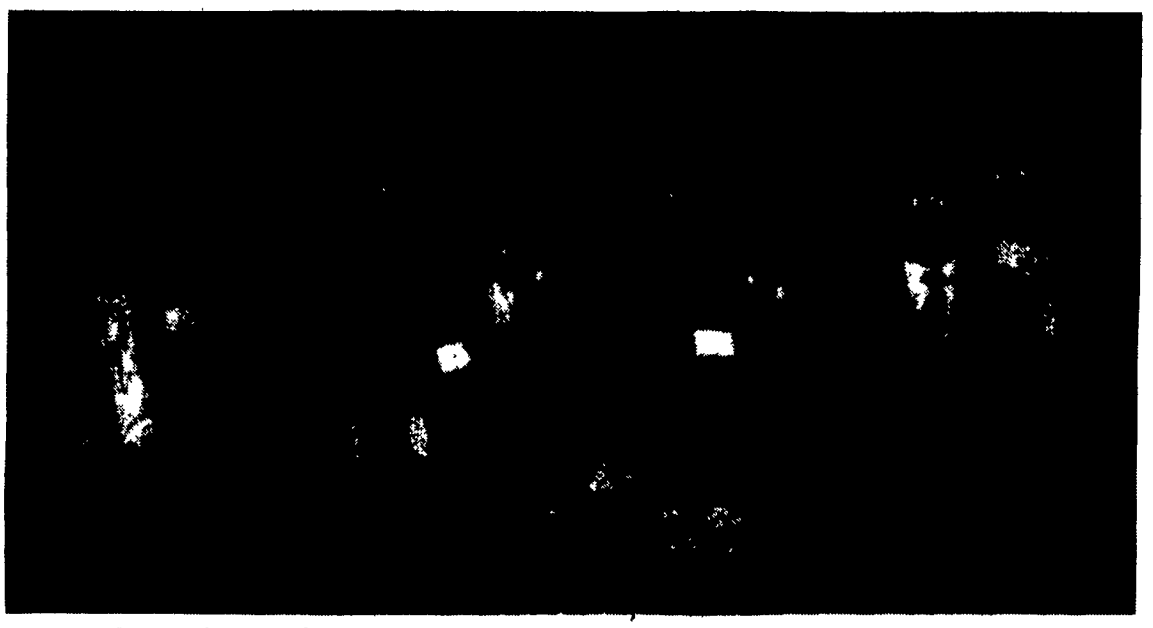
Jill Schwartz of the American Farmland Trust presented two national achievement awards. One went to the Lancaster County Ag Preserve Board and was accepted by County Commissioner Terry Kauffman, a former board member for the preserve. The other award went to Lancaster Farmland trust and was accepted by Phyllis Whitesell, president of the organization.

Thomas L. Daniels, director of the Agricultural Preserve Board, said that he was once asked to name the three most important ingredients for successful land preservation. He answered: "Landowners, landowners, and landowners."

Pa. Ag Secretary Brosius, who also has preserved his farmland in Chester County, congratulated those who work with the program.

"We must continue to keep the county the special place it is," said Daniels. With that in mind, the board has set another goal to have 40,000 acres of farmland preserved in the county.

In a surprise move, county commissioners presented a $500,000 check for land preservation above the budgeted amount. Tribute was paid to politicians for supporting preservation efforts from the beginning. From left are County Commissioner Ron Ford, Senator Noah Wenger, Thomas Daniels, Ag Preserve Board director; Ag Secretary Charles Brosious, and County Commissioners Paul Thilbaut and Terry Kauffman.



A standing ovation was held for the most honored guests of the 350 in attendance — the farmers. Here are the few who have preserved their farms. From left, Naomi and Andrew Miller, an 85-acre farm in Manheim, Dale Frank, a 126-acre farm in West Donegal, and his parents, Richard and Naomi Frank, who preserved a 94-acre farm adjoining their son's farm.

While in Pike County, she was employed by the Pike County Conservation District as resource conservationist.

From Birchrunville, Mackey obtained her bachelor's in biology from Delaware Valley College of Science and Agriculture and her master's in environmental health from West Chester University.

WARNING!

An odorless, colorless, invisible--and costly-- forage thief!

You can't see it--and you can't stop it. Storage losses in forage can steal your valuable crop--how much is lost depends upon how you store your feed.

- Tower Silos have Up to 8% loss
- Bunkers have Up to 45% loss*

If the average difference in feed lost between tower silos and bunkers is 30%, then storage of 1000 tons will mean 300 tons MORE lost in a bunker. If silage is valued at $30 per ton, the additional losses from bunker storage would be $9000 per year.

Streambank Work Controls Damage

As Shade indicated, with a chuckle, "Mother Nature is cleaning house."

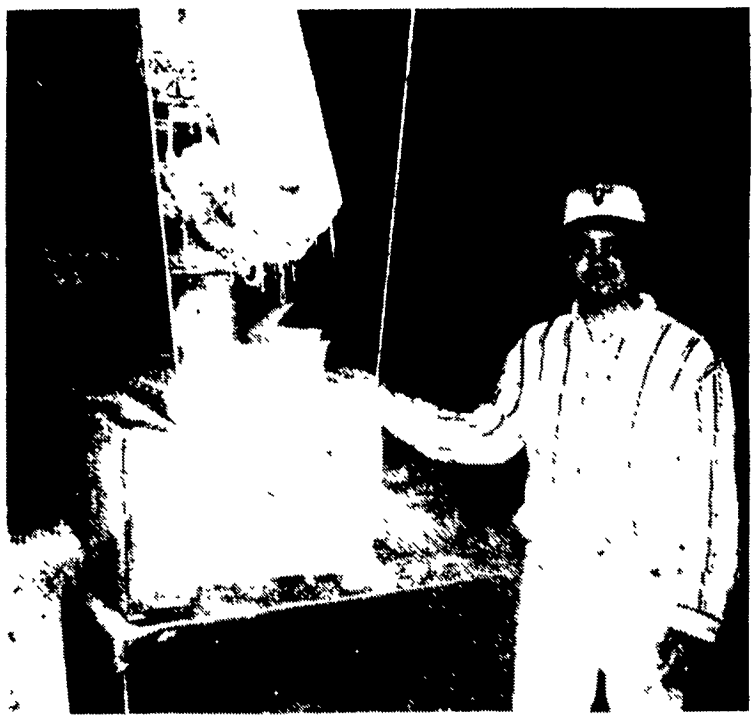
But Shade's efforts over the years may have controlled the damage, to a certain extent. The Dauphin County Conservation Farmer of the Year noted that his extensive work installing streambank protection devices — including fencing, grass, and trees — helped to save the soil from washing out.

The protective plants act as a barrier to hold the soil in place. Matted down grass simply catches a lot of the silt.

"You'd be surpised at all the silt that (the grass) sifts out of the water," he said.

On Tuesday evening, Shade was honored for his work in conservation by the Dauphin County Conservation District at a banquet at the Natural Resources Center in Dauphin.

The Shade family farms about 235 acres (200 tillable) in the hollow below Tannery Hill in the Lykens Valley. With wife Lily and sons Todd, 27, who works full-time and Jason, 18, a senior at Upper Dauphin High School who works part-time, Larry manages about 75 Holsteins. Daughter Crystal, 29, who works for a local catering service, helps milk on the weekends.



Jason is busy with the shelled corn grinder.

The milking herd numbers 66 of all grade Holstein. Milking is from tiestall to pipeline. The latest DHIA test indicated a herd average of 17,500 pounds.

The Shades also rent an additional 75 acres. The farm operation includes three farms altogether within about a mile radius. The Shades grow about 100 acres of corn, 60 acres of alfalfa, and about 50 acres of wheat, the rest covered with clover/timothy. Larry Shade uses 80 percent minimal till and 20 percent moldboard plowing on the farm.

Larry said the use of cover crops such as rye rotated onto the corn silage helps "keep the soil covered pretty well." The droughty Clymer very stony loam is easily subject to drought stress.

Indeed, because of the droughts, the past several years have been especially challenging. Last summer, the drought which began in July and lasted through August gave the dairy family only about 2,000 bushels of shelled corn for about 60 bushels per acre.

Fortunately, as indicated here by Larry, grass that lined the creek worked to contain the soil.

"It didn't rain here until September," said Lily. "A Saturday in July it got so hot. I don't think it rained much after that."

Larry grew up on the main farm in Elizabethville. After he married Lily, the Shades purchased a nearby farm. Larry joined the district in 1969 and laid the farm out in contour strips according to district plans.

The hilly region demanded that some type of contours be laid out. "It just stands to reason that water follows the corn rows, if you got them going around a hill, everything's always level."

Grass strips next to the hilly corn rows catch any soil that moves from the corn.

Allen and Beatrice Shade, Larry's parents, had begun contouring the fields on the main farm long before Lily and he moved there with their family in 1978. Additional contours were installed in the late 1980s, and other practices were put in place, including grass waterways and 150 feet of tile drainage.

In 1990, a glass-fused-to-steel circular manure storage tank with a capacity of 330,000 gallons was installed with cost-share money from the Chesapeake Bay Program. The manure is stored and spread twice a year, once in the spring and again in the fall.

While the Shade Farm did all it could to ensure soil erosion was controlled, it was the events of last January that proved deeply challenging — and troubling.

After the severe snowstorms early in January, in mid-month, the 40-plus inches of snow and ice that

Shade said he was "really surprised" by receiving the Conservation Farmer of the Year honor. "I didn't think I did any better than the neighbors. I didn't go out after it, let's put it that way." With him is his dog Red.

Extensive work installing streambank protection devices — including fencing, grass, and trees — helped to save the soil from washing out. Here, Todd checks out the trees.

Pennsylvania Export Commission Meeting Held

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — The Pennsylvania Producers Research and Development Commission, a fledgling group of 566 farmers and agribusiness people in Southeast Pennsylvania, held its annual meeting Monday night at the Hoffman Building at the Fairgrounds. The commission was formed last year to provide an avenue of foreign export trade for local agriculture products and to import products to be placed in distribution channels in the U.S.

The prospect of large returns on a small investment and the opportunity to alleviate some of the economic encumbrances placed on farmers in the current marketing systems, brought an avalanche of prospective shareholders rushing to beat the deadline last November for buying $100 stock. Since that time, the Commission has started to open up some trade lanes with the former Soviet Union, and officials reported the shipment of cream cheese and corn oil as the first sales made by the Commission. In the next two weeks, canned corn will be added to the list of shipments scheduled to be exported.

President Lloyd Welk reported that the Commission has participated in both the Pennsylvania Trade Meeting as part of the State Farm Show in January and the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce's trade meeting in February. Welk also reported that State money is available to reimburse the Commission for 50 percent of expenditures spent to research and develop foreign markets.

Officials also announced that a new stock offering is now being made for 50 more shareholders to join the Commission at $1,000 per share.

While the meeting was reported as "positive," Commission Secretary Bob Wenger said it should be emphasized that these things take time—maybe more time than some of those who joined the original group anticipated. Wenger said that until you research the source of products and go through the hoops of export channels where the work ethic may be different than here at home, the whole process takes time.

About 200 shareholders attended the meeting.

accumulated began thawing. The ground was frozen and then, over a space of a few days, thawed out. Water from melting snow crested over the creek that runs through the hollow of the Shade Farm — the same creek leads about a quarter of a mile to the Black Creek, a tributary of the Susquehanna River where it joins at Millersburg.

The "river" that went through the hollow measured nearly 50 feet wide and acted like a plow to dislodge soil that broke away from the sod after the sudden thawing.

Fortunately, grass that lined the creek worked to contain the soil. The stream bank fencing work was the key to containing the silt.

"When you have a 40-50 foot broad river running down over the field, it's bound to pull grass out," said Shade. "It doesn't matter what cover crops you have, it's going to take some of them out."

Fortunately, the gutters weren't washed away and the contours held. Some of the ground underneath the waterways was taken out.

For the creek, there was exposed soil on some of the banks.

The flooding reminded Larry of the Tropical Storm Agnes flooding of June 1972. But then, newly cut hay acted as a soil barrier. In 1972, the floods came at the beginning of the "green" season, so much of the water was absorbed and utilized by the spring growth.

The ground then was "stabilized," said Shade. "When the ground is stabilized, it isn't going to wash near as quick as it does when it thaws out real fast in the spring."

Shade said he was "really surprised" by receiving the Conservation Farmer of the Year honor. "I didn't think I did any better than the neighbors. I didn't go out after it, let's put it that way."

Shade indicated that he always "kind of shied away" from honors such as Conservation Farmer of the Year. With a laugh, he indicated that, as a result, "neighbors are going to watch you like a hawk, and if you mess up . . . ."

District Honors Conservationists

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — Conservationists were honored for their service to the Dauphin County Conservation District here on Tuesday evening at the Ag and Natural Resources Center.

Ben Cooper, who has taught 5th grade at South Hanover Elementary school for 16 years, was honored with the Outstanding Conservation Educator Award. Cooper now teaches 6th grade math and science at Lower Dauphin Middle School.

During his career, Cooper has always made environmental education an integral part of his curriculum. His teachings model principle goals of environmental education. Under his leadership, 5th grade student projects have included fund raisers in support of environmental projects and forestland, recycling programs, wildlife habitat improvement, Earth Day activities, and the development of a nature trail used by the entire school.

Mark Dietrich, in recognition of his educational achievements within the Upper Dauphin High School, was honored with the Outstanding Environmental Educator of the Year Award. The work done at the school with the natural resources program, according to the district, serves as a model to other school districts.

The Special Recognition Award for Conservation Awareness is the Milton S. Hershey Middle School of the Derry Township School District. In May this year, 6th grade students, teachers, and parent volunteers will participate in a three-day outdoor education experience at Camp Kenbrook. Since its inception in 1989, Derry Township's Environmental Education Retreat (D.E.E.R., for short) has involved more than 1,500 students. The interdisciplionary educational experience, which includes wildlife and stream studies and projects, astronomy, insects, orienteering, recycling, teamwork activities, and more, promotes conservation awareness.

Scott Named President National DHIA

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The National Dairy Herd Improvement Association announced its 1996-1997 Board of Directors at the 31st Annual Convention held in Kansas City, Missouri, earlier this month.

Dick Scott of Norridgewock, Maine, has been elected National DHIA president. Scott has served on the board since 1987, and had held the position of vice president since 1994.

According to Scott, the vision he has for his presidential term is to focus on the customer — the individual dairy farmer. "National DHIA has evolved in the last 10 years from one program to fit all farms to individual management systems for each farm, while still maintaining the integrity of the information for use by all of our industry. The Herd Profiles and use of Record Standards, which will become a reality this year, will move us forward in providing what our customers need and demand of us," says Scott.

Dick's dairy industry involvement spans over 30 years, progressing from the county board level to state associations, culminating at National DHIA. He, along with the assistance of his wife, Judy, and son, David, manages his family farm on 627 acres, milking approximately 85 Holsteins. Another son, Bill, works off the farm.

Tom Sammon of Faribault, Minnesota, ended his term at the 1996 convention. Sammon, who was elected president of National DHIA in March 1994, served on the board since 1987.

Succeeding Sammon from the Central Region is Larry Eggler of Elgin, Minnesota. Eggler has been active on his local DHIA board for 20 years, serving the past three years as their president. Larry and his brother DuWayne manage a 540-acre farm with 100 milking Holsteins. Other dairy industry involvement includes board president of High Plains Coop and board member of Plainview Milk Products.

Mike Quesnell of Twin Falls, Idaho, completed his 10-year term as board director. Quesnoll served on the board since 1987 and was National DHIA president from 1992 to 1994.

Also retiring after a 10-year term is Doug Runyon of Kopperl, Texas.

Replacing Quesnell and Runyon from the Western Region is Susan Vaadi Lee of Jerome, Idaho. Ms. Lee has been a member of Idaho DHIA for 12 years, serving as secretary, president, and state manager. Presently she is Chairman of the Idaho Dairy Products Commission. Other dairy industry positions include past president of Magic Valley Holstein Club, past director of the National Milking Shorthorn Society, and Chairman of the American Milking Shorthorn Society's Breed Outlook Commission. In 1990, Susan was named the Idaho State Holstein Dairywoman. Susan and her husband, Martin, have been dairying for 27 years and have a herd of 225 Holstein and Milking Shorthorn on their Idalee Dairy Farm.

Other officers were reelected as follows: Richard (Buddy) Nichols, Vice President, Canon City, CO; Dale Eade, Secretary, Cottondale, FL; Dave Mollenhauer, Treasurer, Newark, NY. Directors remaining on the board include Terry Ellingson, Poplar Grove, IL; John Fiscalini, Modesto, CA, Sonny Meyerhoeffer, Mt. Crawford, VA; Gary Tauchen, Bonduet, WI; Doug Temme, Wayne, NE; David Watkins, Moscow, IA.

Nel Empet, General Manager of Northeast DHIA, joins the board as the Affiliate Management Representative. Al Thelen, General Manager of Michigan DHIA in Lansing, will represent the Dairy Records Processing Centers (DRPCs).

National DHIA serves as a liaison for the DHIA System with other dairy industry organizations. The DHI System provides dairy management information systems for the dairy industry which aid dairy producers' profitability. The DHIA System is comprised of 33 Affiliate DHIAs, 45 Central Milk Analysis Labs, 7 Dairy Processing Centers, over 2,000 employees nationwide, and has a membership of over 50,000 dairy producers.

Over $7,000 was raised in the First Annual National DHIA Presidents Scholarship Auction. Approximately 20 Affiliates donated over 40 items which were auctioned off with proceeds going into an educational scholarship fund to benefit the children of DHIA members and employees who are majoring in an agricultural field of study. High bidding items were the Bonnie Mohr farm scene, which went to Ginny Correll of Cleveland, NC; the Robthom Suzet Paddy stained glass rendering, sold to the Missouri Dairy Hall of Fame Group; and a Bret Favre autographed football sold to Jay Mattison of Madison, WI. Other items of interest included a Cleveland Browns jacket, IBM Notebook computer, paintings, baskets, and handmade quilts.

According to Alton Ling, Missiouri DHIA president and chairman of the National DHIA presidents scholarship committee, final selection of scholarship recipients will occur during the National DHIA leadership conference to be held in January 1997, with awards announced at the 1997 Annual Convention. Anyone interested in applying for a DHIA scholarship is invited to contact the National DHIA office at 3021 E. Dublin-Granville Road, Columbus, OH 43231; (614) 890-3630.

With Cargill you get complete nutrition management program - not just feed.
Noah B. Sharp of Belleville, PA has seen the benefits of this process over the last year.

"I have been feeding Nutrena products from Cargill for a little over a year. I've seen improved body condition, better peaks and more persistency. By using the Nutri-Boost amino acid program I have been able to use other new technologies available to dairy farmers. With the Herd Builder calf and heifer program we are raising better replacements that grow faster and healthier. With the Catapult Dry and Fresh Cow program our cows start out the lactation better and peak higher. On test day, there have been several cows over 130 lbs. and this happens to some cows 3 or 4 months in a row. Last August I had 10 cows out of 39 over 100 lbs. for the tester and another 5 over 90 lbs. Much better than I expected in the heat."

More and more dairy operations throughout Pennsylvania, are realizing increased production, better health, and more profit by using a total Nutrition Management Program from Cargill. For more information call us.

DHIA

David A. Bigelow,
Training Coordinator

Call 1-800-DHI-TEST for information.
Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association
DHIA Service Center, Orchard Road, University Park, PA 16802

Recently the senior technicians at Pa. DHIA received specialized training. There was an all day seminar held dealing with the different aspects of the job as a senior technician.

Subjects included professionalism, promotion, prioritizing time, training technicians properly, computer short-cuts, filling-out reports, conducting verification tests and touble shooting bulk tank comparison problems. The program was conducted by the management.

The senior technician program is a unique program which allows for trainers and coaches to be played throughout the servicing area of Pa. DHIA. The main thrust of the program is to have people in place to assist new technicians, on a one-on-one basis, as well as promoting and filling-in for vacations and sickness.

Currently there are 10 senior technicians in place in both Pennsylvania and New York.

The staff at Pa. DHIA feel that having this program in place gives that much more support to the technician force out in the field.

On March 19 the Pa. DHIA field staff met and finalized the agenda for the spring technician conferences. This year's conferences will be centered around interpreting the finished records that the dairymen receive back through the mail.

The importance of each report as well as the proper usage will be stressed.

The spring technician conferences begin on March 22 and finish on April 12 in Clearfield. There are a total of 14 conferences arranged in different parts of the state.

Having the conferences spread out throughout the state cuts down on mileage to the technicians as well as enables for better communication through smaller groups.

This spring's conferences promise to be as exciting as ever with the interpretation of the records and a record number of extension agents, nutritionists and artificial insemination personnel planning to be in attendance.

Contact Pa. DHIA at 1-800-344-8378 for more information on how the Pa. DHIA system can assist in your dairy operation.

Grazing Gazette

PENNSTATE
College of Agricultural Sciences in cooperation with USDA/ARS

LOOKING BACK AND LOOKING AHEAD

Larry Muller
and
Steven Fales
Penn State

We have finished the first year of articles in the Grazing Gazette column. We hope the various articles have been useful and informative to you.

This column was initiated because of the increasing need for educational articles in the grazing area. The movement "back to grazing" and pasture-based systems is still increasing. It is not going back to the "good old days," but it is upgrading old technology that may be right for economical and environmental reasons.

Intensive grazing is another management tool that is being looked at by many producers. It is not for everyone, and not everyone will be successful who adopts a pasture-based system. With good grazing and animal management, it provides the opportunity to improve profitability and lifestlye.

Grazing meetings. Attendance and enthusiasm has been high at local, state, and regional grazing meetings. More than 200 attended the recent two-day Pennsylania Grazing Conference in Carlisle. A program highlight was the presentation by Dave Forgey, a highly successful dairy producer from Indiana and a regular columnist for Hoard's Dairyman, who switched to a grazing system about four years ago. Many other excellent presentations were made in such areas as watering and fencing systems, raising dairy heifers and beef on pasture, grazing management — principles and fine tuning, calf raising systems, low cost milking systems, and others. Twelve different producers participated in the program.

Copies of the proceedings of the Grazing Conference are available for purchase for $10. Send requests to the address at the end of this column and make checks payable to Penn State University.

Grazing meetings and pasture walks are being held on a regular basis throughout Pennsylvania. We encourage you to attend some of these meetings if you want to learn more about pasture-based systems.

Grazing center. This column, the Pennsylvania Grazing Conference, and other grazing activities are sponsored or coordinated through the Grazing Research and Education Center. The Grazing Center was formed nearly two years ago with the mission to enhance the environmental sustainability and profitability of animal agriculture through better use of grassland resources. The major objectives of the Center are education and research in the pasture systems area. The Center has a dedicated advisory council of individuals from various sectors of the agricultural community, including seven producers representing dairy, beef, and sheep industries. Council members meet periodically with faculty and staff to offer guidance on research and educational needs of clientele in pasture management and utilization. The council provides a direct channel for two-way communication between the Grazing Center members and those it serves.

Looking ahead. We plan to continue writing a bi-weekly Grazing Gazette column. Our goal is for these articles to be timely and informative. We welcome your suggestions for topics for the column. These articles will be authored by various members of the Grazing Center, but we want to know what you want written. Bound copies of the 15 articles from last year's Grazing Gazette columns are available for $5. Make checks payable to Penn State.

One of the goals of the Grazing Center is to coordinate educational activities and disseminate inforamtion on grassland agriculture. Please let us know of various grazing activities, meetings, and pasture walks during the upcoming grazing season. We will list these activities in a Grazing Calendar at the end of the Grazing Gazette column.

Please contact us at the Grazing Research and Education Center, 116 Agricultural Sciences and Industries Building, University Park, PA 16802; fax (814) 863-7043. HERD BUILDER
HEIFER FEEDS BY NUTRENA

Robert Davis (Cargill), Kathy St. John, John St. John.
DHIA RHA: 24,324 lbs, 861 F, 798 P — 150 Cows.

The Cargill Herd Builder Program - designed to bring your dairy replacements into the milking herd at 22 months of age at mature body size. The results speak for themselves at Thunder Valley Farms in New London, PA.

"We were apprehensive about changing to Herd Builder last year, but we were surprised at how fast the calves take off. At 2 to 3 days of age our calves are eating Herd Builder Starter. We are seeing a better grown heifer calf without the "hay belly" we used to see. We find the calves wean easier and we are able to wean sooner. With the Herd Builder feeds the calves appetites are easily satisfied. Recently, we tried Cargill's new Half-Time milk replacer and found our calves ate even more calf starter earlier allowing us to wean even sooner. This will help us cut back on Milk Replacer costs and raise a healthier calf."

"As a result of the Herd Builder program I am now breeding by body size and not by the calendar. I am getting the heifers to breeding size in 13 months — at least two months sooner. We are pleased with the Herd Builder program and the results from our Cargill nutrition program for the milking herd. Our Cargill representative [Robert Davis, Cochranville, PA] has shown a lot of interest in our operation. He brings us good recommendations, convinces us to adapt new management practices that are profitable, and challenges us to set new management goals."

Annual Meeting Of ADADC Reported

SYRACUSE,NY — The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) held its annual meeting late last month. In addition to the advertising campaign, accomplishments of ADADC's consumer promotions, public relations and nutrition education divisions of 1995 were highlighted, showing producers the value in general advertising and promotion.

Advertising

Airing through September of 1995, the "Milk. Help Yourself." campaign urged consumers to enjoy their meals and favorite snacks with an ice cold glass of milk. The ads were designed to highlight eating occasions when nothing but milk will do, such as breakfast, dinner, and snacking. They aired at strategic times of the day to encourage an immediate response from consumers.

As a supplement to the "Milk. Help Yourself." campaign, ADADC aired two award-winning advertisements from the "got milk?" campaign. Developed by the California Milk Processor Board, this series of humorous ads remind consumers that they never want to be caught without milk. Because of their rising popularity, the "got milk?" ads were adopted as the national fluid milk advertising campaign by the boards of National Dairy Board (NDB) and the United Dairy Industry Association (UDIA), the funding sources of Dairy Management, Inc. (DMI). Introduced in September, 1995, the award-winning campaign is gast becoming a popular icon to remind consumers to buy milk. The new campaign is so successful that Time magazine named it the best advertising for 1995. USA Today conducted a survey with the top 20 advertising executives in the country, and they too voted "got milk?" the best campaign of 1995.

Consumer Promotions

In supermarkets, ADADC increased retail sales of fluid milk by 4 million dollars in 1995. Based on dairy case sales records, ADADC generates a picture of the dairy case that allocates space for products according to their sales. Because Real dairy products always generate the most profits, space for these items is always increased. When a store resets its dairy case, milk sales increase an average of 4.4 percent. In 1995, ADADC reset 141 dairy cases for a total increase in milk sales of $4,000,000. This equates to 330 tanker loads of milk.

Over 100 dairy case managers from Price Chopper and Food Emporium attended ADADC's Dairy Case Manager Workshops in 1995. Workshops provide managers with valuable product information including rotation procedures, promotion tips and how to answer consumer questions. In 1995, ADADC also provided milk handling training for Upstate Milk and Crowley truck drivers.

Nutrition Education

Since many consumers receive dairy product knowledge from healthcare professionals, ADADC has identified the top 100 most influential people in the nutrition and medical fields that make decisions and set policy. ADADC works closely with these top 100 healthcare professionals to communicate key dairy issues that they in turn will communicate to their colleagues, patients, and to the media. Some of the key issues in 1995 were:

•Lactose Intolerance
•Children's Dietary Guidelines
•Increasing the Recommended Daily Allowance for Calcium

Students are learning that dairy products make delicious snacks through ADADC's current school nutrition programs called Snack Treks and Snack Stars. Targeted to second and fourth grade classes, the program was ordered by 50 percent of the teachers in ADADC's marketing area in 1995.

To assure the freshest and coldest milk reaches students in schools, ADADC conducted a milk temperature study with 719 schools to identify temperature problems. The study found that 42 percent of the schools were not serving milk at the proper temperature. Staff is now working with individual schools and milk processors to alleviate the problem.

While milk is a required component of school meals, ADADC works with school foodservice directors to implement promotions that will increase participation in breakfast and summer feeding programs. Working with 1,153 schools in the spring of 1995, ADADC increased particip atio in school breakfast programs an average of seven percent.

Public Relations

In 1995, ADADC's public relations team was successful in generating 1,129 positive news stories, or 3.37 stories per day, on dairy products. Over 11 percent of these placements were made in the top media outlets in ADADC's market area. The total value of this publicity was $741,630 worth of publicity for milk and dairy products in newspapers and on television.

Press kits filled with dairy recipes and photos were distributed to food editors throughout the year for holidays and special observances. In addition, the following promotions resulted in over 40 television and radio stories:

•Chocolate milk misconceptions
•New York State cheese
•Teenagers need for calcium
•Holiday baking with butter
•"got milk?" campaign
•Leaving milk and cookies for Santa

Part of the publicity division, the dairy princess program generated over 1,000 news articles on food publicity, special events and pageants worth over $98,000. The enthusiastic volunteers presented 2,366 school presentations to over 46,000 elementary students teaching them, at an impressionable age, the importance of milk and dairy products in a healthy diet. In addition, they recorded 2,196 radio and television public service announcements, attended 245 farm meetings and participated in 1,624 special events.

In the election of officers, Raymond Johnson was re-elected president. Johnson, a dairy farmer from Schaghticoke, New York, starts his 14th year as president of ADADC's board. In partnership with his son Ed, Johnson operates a 530-acre Holstain dairy farm.

After the election, Johnson said,"I look forward to working with the board again this year as it continues its commitment of focusing programs that are building demand for fluid milk, as well as other dairy products."

Other officers elected were:

•Vice President Paul Kirsch, Varysburg, NY
•Second Vice President Walter Kingston, Geneseo, NY
•Treasurer Warren Beardsley, Fairport, NY
•Secretary Johanna Collins, Richfield Springs, NY

New York directors elected to the executive committee were:

•Wesley Coots, Hornell, NY
•Elaine Streeter, Adams, NY

From Pennsylvania, executive committee members include:

Average Jersey Production Increases

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio— For the first time, the average milk production for Jerseys is more than 16,000 pounds nationally, setting another record year for the breed.

With the increased emphasis on protein, Jersey producers are also keeping up in the market place by increasing protein production.

During 1995, 672 Jersey herds were enrolled in Dairy Herd Improvement Registry and averaged 16,029 pounds milk, 736 pounds fat, and 590 pounds protein. These mature equivalent (m.e.) averages are based on a total of 48,875 records.

This production shows an incrase of nearly 3 percent for milk and protein and 2 percent for fat over the 1994 breed average.

In addition to a record high average for the Jersey breed, the

◆ FARM FORUM ◆

Editor:

The farm bill that finally passed Congress last week has been characterized as sweeping reform. It's not. Making guaranteed payments to farmers regardless of farm prices or even whether they plant a crop or not is not reform. Distributing those guaranteed payments in the same old way with most of the benefits going to a handful of the largest farm operators is not reform. Neither is continuing to allow triple-dipping of benefits through clever farm incorporation schemes. And, neither is keeping marketing loan mechanisms at such low levels they actually serve to destabilize markets and drive commodity prices to artificially low levels.

No, this "sweeping reform" will instead escalate the concentration of the food and fiber sector, boost the profits of the food processing and retailing sector at the expense of consumers and family farmers and reverse years of progress in conservation and land preservation.

Yes, farm policy needs reform. What's going on in Washington D.C. now isn't reform and only continues the tired old rhetoric about higher prices meaning consumers being gouged in the checkout line. The reality is farm commodity prices have precious little to do with what we as consumers pay for groceries. A blip in advertising rates means a greater fluctuation in retail food prices than major price swings at the farm gate. In fact, many discount food coupons are worth five to ten times more than the farmer's share of the food item!

Real reform of farm policy that would save federal dollars, boost farm and rural incomes through higher real commodity prices in the market and which would direct the benefits of farm programs to the small - to medium - sized farmers is possible. In fact, such reforms were offered. Attempts were made in both the House and Senate to introduce legislation that would have eliminated target prices and deficiency payments in lieu of higher loan rates. Such a plan would enable farmers to get most, if not all of their income, from the marketplace, rather than from a government check.

This proposal would have given farmers the same planting flexibility as the one adopted by Congress. It would have reduced the bureaucracy and kept big producers from triple dipping. The problem with such a plan is that food processors, which are among the most profitable sectors in America today, earning annual returns on investment in the 20-percent range, would have had to pay a few more cents for the grain they use to manufacture your breakfast cereal. With the farmers share of $4 box of cereal running at under 15 cents, this would hardly impact consumer costs. And, taxpayers would not be shelling out cash for farm program payments regardless of market prices and regardless of whether or not a crop is even planted, as the current congressional bill dictates.

Maybe this Congress simply isn't as reform-minded as it claims. Don't you find it ironic that a Congress pledged to reform welfare would create NEW welfare program? And, by the way, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman, the farm legislation passed by Congress in February will actually cost $5 billion more than simply extending the current program. The family farm system of agriculture has served this country well for over 200 years, and independently owned and operated farms do need a modest safety net. Let's not kill the goose that is laying our supply of eggs.

"The whole key with our cows is that they will eat the feed. Before feeding with Cargill this was a problem for many years." ROBERT NOLAN

Nutrition management has many faces. Dairy farming is accomplished successfully by many diverse management styles. The Cargill Feed Division meets the demand for flexibility for Pennsylvania.

Robert and Sharon Nolan have been better able to meet their goals with this flexibility. The Nolan's milk three different herd. - Jerseys, Ayrshires, and Holsteins. Results in the past year with Cargill speak for themselves:

from BSE in the United States. The following Q&A regarding BSE will provide you with more information about the disease and steps taken to verify it does not exist in the U.S., and to prevent its introduction.

Questions And Answers About Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE)

What is BSE? BSE is an extremely rare, chronic degenerative disease affecting the central nervous system of cattle. BSE is not present in the U.S., but has been identified in the United Kingdom and in a few other countries.

Has BSE ever been detected in the U.S.? No cases of BSE have been detected in the U.S. In fact, over the last nine years, USDA has completed 2,660 tests on brains from cattle that have shown any possible neurological problems. All tests were negative.

What steps has USDA taken to prevent BSE from entering the U.S.? To prevent BSE from entering the United States, USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) has taken a number of steps, including:

• APHIS has banned the importation of live ruminants and ruminant products from countries where BSE is known to exist. Since 1991, there has been a voluntary ban in place on the use of rendered products from adult sheep in animal feeds. In 1986, APHIS established a program for BSE surveillance in the U.S. and provided specialized training for 250 APHIS veterinarians who conduct field investigations involving suspicious symptoms. From 1986 to December 31, 1995, 2,660 brain specimens from cattle exhibiting possible neurological problems in 42 states have been studied by APHIS. All samples submitted have been negative. APHIS veterinary pathologists and field investigators have received training from British counterparts for diagnosing BSE.

• More than 60 veterinary diagnostic laboratories throughout the United States are participating in a BSE Surveillance Program (initiated in May 1990) along with the National Veterinary Services Laboratories in Ames, Iowa.

• APHIS veterinarians are tracing 499 head of cattle imported from Great Britain between 1981 and 1989 (before the ban on imports went into effect) to check their health status. As of January 22, 1996, 106 imports are known to be alive; 341 are known to be dead; and eight have been exported. APHIS is trying to locate the remaining 34, but based on the age of the animals, they are assumed to be dead. The animals that are alive are monitored regularly, and no signs of BSE have been found.

How widespread is BSE and what has the British government done to control its spread? Between 1986 and September 1995, an estimated 156,000 head of cattle in more than 32,000 herds were diagnosed with BSE in Great Britain. The number of cases peaked in December 1992, and has declined to less than one-third of that rate and is still declining. A series of precautionary steps taken in Great Britain have resulted in the decline in newly reported cases. For example, in July 1988 Great Britain banned the feeding of ruminant-derived protein to ruminants. Currently fewer than 300 cases are occurring per week.

Is it true that you can get Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (CJD) a human brain disease, from eating beef from cattle with BSE? Experts in Great Britain are concerned there may be a link between BSE and a small group of 10 cases of CJD.

However, the British government's scientific advisers have noted that there is no direct evidence of a link. If there is a risk, it likely would be linked to consumption of brain or spinal cord from infected animals. Scientific evidence indicates that beef (meat) and milk do not present a risk as there is no evidence the agent that causes BSE is present in meat and milk.

What is the incidence of CJD? CJD occurs at consistent rates of approximately one case per million people per year around the world, including in nations where BSE has never occurred. In fact, BSE is found only in limited areas. CJD also occurs at a consistent rate among vegetarian groups and meat eaters alike, which would indicate that its cause is not meat consumption. Scientific evidence suggests several possible causes of CJD, including genetic predisposition and certain surgical procedures.

Where was BSE first detected? BSE was first identified in 1986 in Great Britain. While it has been found in a few other countries, the vast majority of BSE cases have been concentrated in the United Kingdom. BSE is similar to other animal degenerative brain diseases that include Chronic Wasting Disease in elk and deer and scrapie which has been known for more than 100 years to affect sheep.

Is BSE a virus or a bacterial infection? The scientific evidence suggests that BSE is not a viral or bacterial infection. Rather, it seems to point to a protein material or "prion" as the cause of the disease.

How do cattle get BSE? Scientists conclude that cattle may get the disease from eating protein in feed that was probably contaminated with a Spongiform disease agent. Scientific evidence indicates that BSE does not spread from cattle to cattle or from cattle to other species by physical contact.

What are the symptoms of BSE? Cattle with BSE have coordination problems and are very nervous. In the advanced stages, infected cattle stand away from the rest of the herd and exhibit severe muscular twitching and weight loss.

Deputy Ag Sec. Says Dairy Industry In Two Divisions

PITTSBURGH — The dairy industry, like the rest of the country, is being ripped into two divisions — the "haves" and the "have-nots", Russell Redding told 150 industry officials in a keynote talk at the Northeast Dairy Conference in Pittsburgh Monday.

Redding, Pennsylvania's deputy ag secretary for marketing, promotion and program services, said a recent Farm Journal article described this trend, and offered a picture of the future dairy farmer who will survive and prosper by:

- setting goals.
- analyzing the farm records.
- improving efficiencies.
- using consultants.
- reading "until it hurts" to get information.

The article "was talking about producers, but I think it applies to the industry as a whole," Redding said. He noted that "all of us need to look at new opportunities to enhance income," whether it be the export market or in building strategic alliances to capture new consumer dollars at home.

The Department of Agriculture has been taking a hard look at farm issues over the past year, he said, and has determined it needs to look at strengthening right-to-farm legislation and at ways to advance economic opportunities in the industry.

Noting that agriculture was the state's number one industry, Redding welcomed conference participants on behalf of Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Charles Brosius.

With the U.S. set to phase out dairy price supports and consolidate federal milk marketing orders, dairy cooperatives and private processors need to become more oriented to the consumer.

That was one message shared by two speakers at the Conference who gave co-op and processor perspectives in "How to Position the Dairy Industry for the Future Under Deregulation."

Dr. Bruce Anderson, an associate professor at Cornell University who specializes in cooperative business, said that in addition to focusing on consumers and the customers they supply raw milk to, dairy cooperatives need to "exploit their advantages." In particular, co-ops should:

ops should:

- put a price on market security, which he defined as "a place to send your product," whether it means buying out a customer or securing a long-term supply contract.
- take advantage of their ability to work together under the Capper-Volstead Act. Together cooperatives should be doing joint marketing and forming strategic alliances to become competitive in the national and global marketplaces.

Anderson also encouraged dairy cooperatives to :

- invest their own money in product development and not depend solely on National Dairy Board-funded research and generic promotions.
- benchmark performance as other companies do, on profitability and return on equity.
- enhance members' investment by allowing their equity in the co-op to appreciate.

"The next few years are real decision years for dairy cooperatives," Anderson said. "Co-ops need to grow, grow, grow toward consumers," and they need to "make major positive strategic decisions for dairy farmers."

What's required, he added, is "vision, personal desire and commitment."

In presenting the processor perspective, Craig Alexander, executive director of the Dairy Institute of California, noted: "We need to refocus on customers and on selling more dairy products. We should be able to agree on that."

He thinks processors will look to "minimize procurement costs" and "maximize supply commitment" as the industry becomes less deregulated. That presents opportunities for co-ops, he said, because they may be able to take advantage of "economies of scale" in offering a stable milk supply. Private dealers will be looking for competetive pricing, Alexander added, but co-ops should look at offering extra service to get the pricing they want.

"The future ain't what it used to be."

That's how Bill Perry, quoting cowboy philosopher Will Rogers, summed up the contentious attempt by the industry and Congress to write a 1995-96 farm bill.

"This is definitely a Congress in transition," Perry said. "It's a reflection of society, where change is so rapid...Congress is in the same boat. Things are happening so fast around them that they don't know what to make of it."

As vice president for governmental affairs and member relations for Milk Marketing Inc., Perry spent time with Congressional delegations trying to communicate the concerns of dairy farmers.

But how farm legislation impacts producers was not their primary concern, he said. With the vast majority of Americans long removed from production agriculture, and taking for granted well-stocked stores selling food at reaonable prices, Perry said Congress had other concerns - ranging from cutting the federal budget to public's negative perception of subsidies and support programs.

"The WIC (Women, Infants, and Children) programs had more influence on the farm bill than all of the efforts of all of the producer groups combined," he said. For law makers there are more people affected back home by social programs like WIC than there are farmers.

It comes down to a percentage s "haves" and "have-nots," said Perry. "In the eyes of the public this is a room full of 'haves'...People in the WIC program are the 'have-nots'."

He also blamed the industry for sending mixed messages to Congress on what should comprise the dairy title of the farm bill. That's what led CBS and Dan Rather reporting a so-called "secret deal" that would add "additives in milk." It was one side of the dairy industry opposing the other, he said.

Sugar and peanut farmers didn't have such disunity and as a result fared better in the farm bill, Perry pointed out.

For the future, Perry urged the industry to work with the public and urged the various dairy factions to reach a consensus to better communicate what dairying and farming are all about.

"Those people in the WIC program can help us if we do it right. Those people on the other side of the issue can help us if we frame the discussion right."

He added: "We've got to hang together, or we'll dog-gone sure hang alone."

Saying he expected a farm bill signed into law come April, Perry summed up the major dairy provisions that the House and Senate Conference Committee agreed on:

- a four-year phaseout of the price support program.
- the immediate removal of the assessment on farmers that helped pay for programs.
- a three-year consolidation of federal milk marketing orders, which set minimum prices farmers receive for their raw product, to no fewer than 10 and to no more than 14 orders.
- fully funding and expanding the Dairy Export Incentive Program to help create new export markets for America's surplus dairy products.

"Ultimately," Perry said, "you hope you come out with something you can live with, and I think we did."

The three-day Northeast Dairy Conference opened with a cheese reception Sunday night and got down to business Monday and Tuesday with sessions tackling issues affecting the future of the industry. Attending were food company managers, leaders of dairy cooperatives, government officials and university ag professors. The host this year was Milk Marketing Inc., the region's largest dairy co-op and 12th largest U.S. dairy food company. Headquartered in Strongsville, Ohio, MMI has a regional office in Syracuse, NY, and manufacturing operations in Indiana, New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio. MMI's 9,000 dairy farm families produce milk in Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, New York, West Virginia, Massachusetts, Vermont, and Delaware.

Northeast DHIA Joins Forces With Raleigh DRPC

ITHACA, N.Y. — The 4,000 member Northeast Dairy Herd Improvement Association is on track with the transfer of records processing services to DRPC Raleigh. The alignment with Raleigh, along woth their long-time relationship with Valley Agricultural Software, gives Northeast members a considerable product and service advantage.

"We have joined forces with two industry leaders. We look forward to continuing our successful relationship with Valley Ag Software as well as building a strong and successful relationship with DRPC Raleigh," notes Northeast DHIA General Manager Nelvin Empet.

Valley Ag Software, providers of Dairy Comp 305 and Scout software, have maintained national leadership in the herd management software arena for several years. They will continue to grow and strengthen their ties within the marketplace, particularly in the Northeast where the software is aggressively marketed and supported by Northeast DHIA.

The move to processing with Raleigh allows Northeast DHIA to provide members and Agriservice community with a broader range of services, and will allow Northeast DHIA to focus their resources on providing the high quality service members are accustomed to. The transfer also allows the cooperative the ability to easily expand services to neighboring markets, thereby strengthening their position as a national leader in providing dairy records services.

Lady Bugs Can Be Beneficial

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — As spring arrives, many Pennsylvanians are bracing for an onslaught of foreign insect invaders — Asian lady beetles. But despite the temptation, you shouldn't kill these benign and even beneficial bugs.

"In the last few years, multicolored Asian lady beetles have caused quite a stir," said Steven Jacobs, extension entomologist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "Although they can be a nuisance, they do far more good than harm."

A native of eastern Asia, the beetle was introduced into the United States by the U.S. Department of Agriculture as a biological control agent. The tree-dwelling insect can live up to three years and is a voracious predator of aphids, scale insects, and other pests. Adults of the species were first observed in Pennsylvania in 1993.

At 9/32 of an inch long and 7/32 of an inch wide, these beetles are oval or convex and slightly larger than native lady beetles. They are yellow to red in color, with or without as many as 19 black spots on the wing covers. The head is usually concealed beneath a disk-shaped "collar," which is cream to yellow in color with a black 'M' design in the center.

Asian lady beetles become a nuisance when they invade homes in search of shelter and warmth. "Starting around September, these insects will begin to congregate on windows, doors and porch decks, seeking sites to overwinter," said Jacobs. "If they have entered your house, you may not notice them until temperatures begin to rise in the spring. After a few warm, sunny days, the emerge from their hiding spots in search of an exit."

The presence of Asian lady beetles in large numbers can lead to near hysteria among some homeowners. Despite the nuisance the beetles can cause, they do not bite, sting, carry human diseases, or feed on wood, clothing, or food.

"Mechanical exclusion seems to be the best way to keep them out of your house," said Jacobs. "Seal cracks and openings around windows, doors, siding, utility pipes and chimneys with silicone or silicone-latex caulk. Repair or replace damaged screens. Cover attic vents and fireplace chimneys with number 20 or smaller screen mesh.

"If beetles are already in your house, use a broom and dust pan or vacuum cleaner to remove them" Jacobs said. "But because they're very beneficial in controlling damaging pests, they should be released unharmed in a protected area outside."

For a free fact sheet on multicolored Asian lady beetles, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county.

NFO Submits Testimony To Committee

AMES, Iowa — On Monday, March 25, The National Farmers Organization (NFO) voiced its concern about vertical integration in the livestock industry to the USDA's Advisiry Committee on Agricultural Concentration.

In written testimony, NFO President Gene Paul focused on the need to resist the current trend in packer industry concentration and to maintain a marketplace that is fair, open, and competitive.

"We view recent developments with great concern because three or four meatpacking firms control a large percentage of the market. The vertical integration continues by many of these same firms owning or contracting livestock production facilities, which can adversely affect market prices and fair access," Paul said.

Paul explains that as competition is eliminated in purchasing of fed cattle , hogs and sheep, the negative influence also affects prices for feeders and breeding stock.

NFO represents independent livestock producers nationwide who adopted the following resolution which supports:

*Legislativeeffort that would restrict anticompetitive mergers and acquisitions.

*More attentive surveillance of the packing industry by the justice department and others with responsibility for administrationof the anti-trust laws.

*Continuation of the independent administation of the Packers and Stockyards Act to investigate market irregularities.

*Retaining and strengthening the present authority contained in the Packers and Stockyards Act to investigate market irregularities.

*Enforcement of legislation restricting large integrated corporate livestock operations which adversely affect rural communities and creat envirinmental pollution, and requiring that all large confinement entities be bonded and financially responsible for environmental damage and subsequent cleanup.

"The United States Department of Agriculture, through the Packers and Stockyards Act of 1921 has set a precedent for appropriate enforcement of section 202," Paul said. "Section 202 states in part that it is unlawful to engage in any course of business with the effect of manipulating or controlling prices, or creating a monopoly in the acquisition of, buying, or selling."

Paul further stated that failure to act will result in the further industrialization of American agriculture and the more rapid demise of independent producers.

While Americans have never experienced serious concerns about food security, National Farmers is concerned whether control of America's food supply by three or four multinational corporations is in the best interest of consumers.

Agricultural Drivers Exempt During Growing Season

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Truck drivers transporting agricultural commodities or farm supplies in Pennsylvania have been granted a permanent exemption on maximum driving time during the growing and harvesting seasons, according to Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius.

"We have worked closely with the Department of Transportation in providing this regulatory relief under provisions of the National Highway Safety Act, and the exemption will bring important economic benefits to Pennsylvania's agricultural industry," Brosius said.

The "planting and harvesting season" in Pennsylvania has been designated as March 1 through Nov. 30 for the purposes of the exemption. Drivers are allowed to extend their driving hours within a 100-mile radius of the source of the commodities or the distribution point for the farm supplies.

Brosius noted that the exemption will mean increased profitability for farmers because it will allow for a freer and more timely flow of commodities to market during critical harvest periods. It will also allow the delivery of important supplies to farms throughout the planting and growing season.

Last Annual Meeting For Atlantic Breeders Co-op

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Atlantic Breeders Cooperative held its 32nd and last annual meeting and luncheon on Wednesday at the Quality Inn and Suites in Lancaster.

Monday, April 1, marks the official start of the new joint venture cooperative, Genex (pronounced jen-ex, with the accent on the first syllable) Cooperative — a merged organization comprised of members and resources of the 51-year-old Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, Louisiana Breeders Cooperative and Eastern Artificial Insemination Cooperative.

The merger has been about four years in the works, and for the past two year the cooperatives' leadership worked with legal and technical details to ensure a fair and sound merger proposal for the three cooperatives.

Since each cooperative had developed its own bylaws and systems of management, there were some details that had to be worked out, such as member-equity returns.

Since 1986, the three cooperatives had been working in partnership under the umbrella of Federated Genetics to market artificial insemination products and services outside the membership areas to several states and countries.

Part of the merger deal is for Genex Cooperative to also be a subsidary of Cooperative Resources International (CRI), a holding cooperative based in Shawano, Wis., that early this year approved accepting Genex Cooperative as a subsidary.

The effort to merge actually begain in 1991 with the formation of a long-range planning committee comprised of members of each of the partners under Federated Genetics.

According to the ABC newsletter, the Transmitter, "The resulting (committee) proposal keyed on four goals: develop adequate business size to finance members needs and research; gain better efficiences in operations and decision-making; tighten control on nonmember marketing to build revenue; position the organization to readily adapt to future changes."

Forming Genex was seen as a way for each of the three cooperatives to best serve its members.

The ABC newsletter announcing the approved merger plan was the February-March, 1996 issue, Volume 32, No.2.

According to ABC official, there is planned one last issue of the inhouse newsletter which will also feature Wednesday's proceedings.

It was still undecided as of this week what type of inhouse communications tool would be used to replace the different inhouse efforts used by the three cooperatives.

The area of membership for the new cooperative has been divided into 13 different director regions, with Region 1 representing the Louisiana Animal Breeders Cooperative service region and the other 12 regions covering Pennsylvania, Maryland, parts of Ohio and West Virginia, Delaware, New York, and the other New England states.

Altogether, the new cooperative will have 27,302 members, more than 270 elected member representatives, 279 artificial insemination service technicians, 70 direct-herd sales representatives, and 817 stud sires.

From the left, James Kreider receives a plaque from David Hileman recognizing Kreider's 25 years serving Atlantic Breeders Cooperative as its president.

Members of the Atlantic Breeders Cooperative who have been elected to serve on the board of directors of the newly merged and created Genex Cooperative, an artificial insemination cooperative, are, seated from the left, Lee Kummer and David Hileman, and standing from the left, Earl Furhman, and Alfred Wanner.

From the left, state Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius, who was guest speaker, talks with James Kreider about the creation of the new Genex Cooperative and the end of the Atlantic Breeders Cooperative.

Combined sales of the three cooperatives was 2,376,734 units sold.

As a subsidary of CRI, Genex will be associated with other subsidaries 21st Century Genetics, Noba, and AgSource (which was the Wisconsin DHI Cooperative).

All told, the combined sire programs of the organizations under CRI is almost 2,000 bulls housed at nine locations.

The role of CRI is to reduce costs by condensing operations for finance, management information systems, member and public relations, streamlined marketing, combined advertising and information, having a uniform employee benefits program.

Each subsidary is responsible for its own product and service operations, budgeting, and equity pool.

Cooperation between the artificial insemination cooperatives to enhance international marketing has been ongoing since the early 1970s. This latest merger has been seen as a natural transition.

During Wednesday's meeting, delegates approved keeping the ABC research and promotion committeemen elected in the past to continue as delegates of Genex Cooperative until new delegate elections are held.

As a formality, they also approved continuing the terms of current directors until April 1.

Along with nine other people from Eastern and Louisiana cooperatives, ABC is to have four members serve on the first Genex board of directors.

In elections held Monday in Ithaca by delegates of all three cooperatives the 13 Genex directors were named.

From ABC, David Hileman, of Tyrone, was not only elected to the board, but was also elected by the board as vice president.

Other board members from ABC include Earl Fuhrman, of Hanover, who represents Genex Region 11; Lee Kummer, of Evans City, representing members in Genex Region 13; and Alfred Wanner, Narvon, who is to represent members in Genex Region 10.

After the morning business session, James Kreider, ABC president for 25 years, and representatives of the other cooperatives signed paperwork finalizing the commitment to Genex.

During the afternoon luncheon, state Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius served as guest speaker, congragulating the members on their move forward.

"I commend the leadership of your cooperatives and the courage of your members to forge this new direction at a time when you are individually (as cooperatives) strong, but with the knowledge that a merger will produce an even brighter future for your members," Brosius said.

He said that Atlantic has been "one of the pillars" of agriculture in the state, and that it could always be counted on for its lead-

Grain Sorghum Yield, Management Contest Set

ABERNATHY, Texas — This year marks the twelfth year for the Grain Sorghum Yield and Management Contest, which is sponsored by the National Grain Sorghum Producers.

Each year, growers from across the United States compete to see who can produce the best sorghum yield for their county and state. State first-place winners go on to compete for national honors.

In the sorghum contest, yields are compared to the county's five-year average yield as estimated by the National Agricultural Statistical Service. The contestant's score is the number of bushels the contest plot produced over that average.

The contest is divided into four divisions: dryland conventional tillage, irrigated conventional tillage, dryland no-till, and irrigated no-till. Based on scores, state and national winners are named in first, second and third places in each division.

The only change in this year's contest is that high-tannin, bird resistant sorghum seed varieties will no longer be accepted as entries in the contest. Producers who are uncertain about the tannin content of their seed can contact their local seed dealer for more information.

Producers may enter as many contest plots as they wish. A $35 entry fee must accompany each entry. Contestants must be a member of the association; however, membership dues may be sent in with the entry.

Entry forms are available from the National Grain Sorghum Producers office. Producers who are interested in entering the contest can call the office at (806) 298-4501 or write P.O. Box 530, Abernathy TX 79311.

Atlantic Breeders Co-op

ership, tradition of excellence, and support of the industry.

He said he anticipates that Genex will be a good cooperative.

He said Wednesday's event was an historic occasion although noting that he normally gets invited to be a speaker at the first meetings of an organization. "It's the first time I was asked to talk at the last meeting of an organization," he joked.

However, he did note that it was a beginning for the members of Atlantic Breeders, and that it carries a lot of responsibility for the leadership of the cooperative.

In other business, special presentation were made by ABC President Kreider. Lewis Doub, the auditor for 11 years, was honored for his extra dedication to the organization.

According to Kreider, Doub grew up in Waynesboro and used to visit his grandmother's farm and enjoyed the cows.

He graduated from Shippensburg State University with a bachelor of science degree in business administration and while a student did an internship with Hatter, Harris and Beittel (hired to do the cooperative's accounting).

After graduation, he began working full time for the accounting firm, becoming a certified public accountant in 1983. He has been working there for the past 11 years.

According to Kreider, "In addition to performing the annual audits for Atlantic and Federated, Lew provides valuable counseling services to us.

"Dave Mellinger says Lew is continually coming up with new ways to look at accounting issues. He challenges us and stretches our thought processes every year at audit time.

"In these challenging economic times, every growing business appreciates receiving sound advice from reputable counsel. Lew Doub has filled this need for many years in a very professional manner."

Also receiving special recognition from ABC was Dr. Michael O'Conner, a Penn State dairy reproduction specialist recently appointed coordinator of the extension section within the Penn State Department of Dairy and Animal Science.

"Mike's area of responsibility is reproductive management, something that's near and dear to our cooperative and its members.

"Mike has had a positive influence on many Pennsylvania dairymen and their dairy herd profitability through his efforts in bovine reproduction.

"He has conducted workshops and seminars in reporductive management for dairy producers, veterinarians, and Atlantic personnel. He has written articles to help dairy producers improve the reproductive efficiency of their herds.

"His field studies have included projects on integrated reproductive management and evaluation of artificial insemination technique," Kreider said.

Active in several professional associations including American Dairy Science, Gamma Sigma Delta, and Dairy Shrine, he received the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association Extension award in 1992. Since then he took sabatical to further studies on the female bovine reproductive cycle and techniques for gaining better in vivo conceptions and has returned providing some of his insight to Pennsylvania's dairy farmers.

"We are grateful for the work Mike has done for Pennsylvania dairymen," Kreider said. "Likewise we appreciate his work directly with Atlantic Breeders in training technicians and field staff, and his written contributions to our publications."

After presenting O'Conner with an award and a check, Kreider turned the podium over to Hileman who presented Kreider with a plaque bearing a gavel in commemoration of Kreider's 25 years as president of the cooperative.

Kreider, in noting that David Slusser, currently manager of the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association, had been his predecessor at Atlantic Breeders, said he had hoped to do as good a job. Kreider, missed one meeting in those 25 years.

"We had a great organization," Kreider said, "and we are to have one in the future."

As a final act of the meeting, Hileman gave a ball cap bearing the new Genex logo to Kreider and staff members distributed them to the entire audience.

While is has long been announced that the Genex headquarters is to be located in Ithaca, N.Y., at the Eastern building, and that the ABC Lancaster bull stud will remain a stud, the specifics of what happens with existing ABC staff are yet to be determined.

The transition is expected to take several months, though the effect of the change to ABC members should not be felt. The same technicians, service, etc. should continue uninterrupted.

POULTRY IPM RESEARCH FOR 1996

Dr. Charlie Pitts
Professor of Entomology

One of the main users of integrated pest management (IPM) technology in the animal production area is the poultry industry in Pennsylvania.

This industry is valued at a little more than half a billion dollars and plays a significant role in the economy of the commonwealth.

Within the framework of the industry — that is, layer, broiler, and turkey production and breeders — the main entomological problem is habitat pests.

The habitat pests pose the greatest threat to the poultry industry because of two major insect problems, the house fly and the lesser mealworm. The house fly also causes problems with the non-poultry producing neighbors because flies migrate to surrounding houses and are a nuisance as well as presenting potential health hazards.

In addition, house flies can do damage to the paint surface of houses and other structures, many times requiring a new paint job.

The lesser mealworm does structural damage to poultry houses by boring into the structural timbers and insulation causing permanent damage. In addition, at cleanout time, the lesser mealworm will migrate to surrounding houses and becomes a household pest for the neighbors.

During the last few years, poultry producers have been using a feed additive insecticide called Larvadex. Many times feed through insecticides, along with residual sprays and fogs, were the tools that producers utilized. The feed additive approach for control of flies can result in poor fly control, which we think is due to development of resistance by the house fly to the insecticides.

Rapid development of resistant populations is evidence of poor pesticide management in controlling pests. It appears that in recent years we have had more complaints about flies around poultry production units and we feel that this is partially due to resistance to Larvadex.

Integrated pest management strategies being used in managing insect populations consists of cultural, biological, and chemical tactics. The research for the basis of these tactics has been done all over the USA, financed mostly by the USDA.

Penn State has participated mostly in the chemical control tactic. Most of the producers in Pennsylvania are using management and chemical tactics with some beginning to utilize parasites in their programs.

The standard IPM program for layers in a high-rise poultry house consists of using cultural, biological, and chemical tactics. This approach was started by Axtell at North Carolina State University where he first published on the integrated approach to fly control in caged poultry houses. At that time, the integrated approach was basically selected use of chemicals.

In 1981, Rutz and Axtell conducted a study on house fly control in breeder poultry houses using pupal parasites: both indigenous species and releases of commercial Mucidifurax Raptor. This study laid the basis for many studies to come on the use of parasites for house fly control in poultry houses.

Many studies have been completed but no one has answered the question as to how many parasites should be released to control house fly populations in layer houses.

This year, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has funded a research program to answer the questions: "How many parasites do you release in a high-rise poultry house?" and, "When do you release the parasites?" These results will be updated in Poultry Pointers later in the year.

If there are topics or questions that you would like to see addressed in future articles, please send them to Charlie Pitts, Department of Entomology, 501 AS I Building, Penn State University, University Park, PA 16802, or phone (814) 863-7789.

Farm Groups Find Common Ground

CINCINNATI, Ohio — National farm groups that have found themselves on opposite sides of an issue in the past found that they have a lot in common.

The dialogue occurred at National Farmers Union's 94th Anniversary Convention. The farm leaders featured at the panel discussion were John Lacey, president of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association and David Senter, representingFarm Aid and the Association of Farmer-Elected Committee.

Following opening comments by both panelists, including an explanation of the recent merger of beef producer organizations, comments and questions from Farmers Union members opened the session. Audience questions included concerns with the new beef organization's co-mingling of administative funds from the beef industry's mandatory check-off with funds collected for lobbying.

"We need to look at the big picture. There needs to be better communication between the various agriculture groups," Lacey said in response to a question on how agriculture can avoid tunnel vision and work together constructively. "Agriculture groups need to get together to discuss how we are going to get respect for agriculture back."

"I believe family farmers are in this together, so we had better work together," Senter said. "We had also better work with coalition groups, such as consumers, environmental organizations and bankers, all of whom play a vital role in federal policies affecting agriculture."

Very few people in the U.S. have really gone hungry, unlike in Europe where agriculture is supported and respected," Lacey said.

The panelists and audience seemed to agree on importance of agricultural groups do agree. Proposals included joint advertising that educates the public on the production practices, environmental stewardship, and value of family agriculture, as well as conferences that involve all agriculture organizations. "We don't have an organization that unifies us, and it's high time we got one," Lacey said.

Maine-New England Beef Expo April 26-28

FRYEBURG, Maine — The Maine Beef Producers Association will present the 1996 Maine - New England Beef Expo on April 26-28 here on the Fairgrounds.

The sixth annual event is well on its way to becoming the largest and finest expo to date.

Several visitors from the 1995 Maine - New England Beef Expo requested more trade show exhibits. The trade show is well on its way to offering something for everone this year. Requests for space are still coming in.

One of last year's exhibitors commented, "When I left the Expo last year, I wasn't sure how well I was going to do, but I sold equipment all year long because of my booth at the Expo. As a matter of fact, last week I delivered another piece of equipment to Massachusetts from a contact I made at the Expo."

The Pure Bred Seed Stock Sale for 1996 has doubled in size over last year. On Saturday evening, immediately following the banquet, scheduled is the New England Simmental Association Sale with six bulls and 24 females.

The Pride of the Pines Sales, featuring Hereford Cattle, is next with entries from as far away as New Jersey. The last group selling on Saturday night will be the Highland Cattle.

National champion blood lines will be offered from throughout the Northeast this year with 16 entries of some of the top Highland Cattle found anywhere in the country.

The Sixth Annual National Belted Galloway Sale will take place on Sunday beginning at 11 a.m. More than 45 Belties from the nation's finest foundation herds will be offered this year.

The New England Angus Association will wrap up the sale with 50 of the finest hand-picked lots available.

The educational program this year will include a hands on clinic for youth leaders and parents on how to successfully manage a club calf.

Alliance Unloader Control Panel

After start up:

1. Turn automatic switch to "ON"
2. Push "FORWARD" unloader control to start operation
3. Turn automatic switch to "SHUT DOWN" to end operation

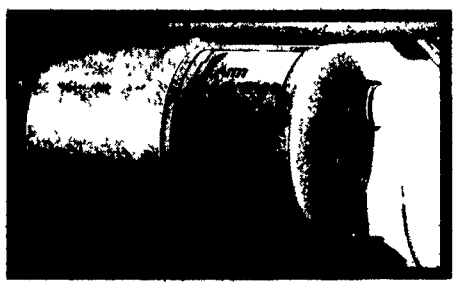
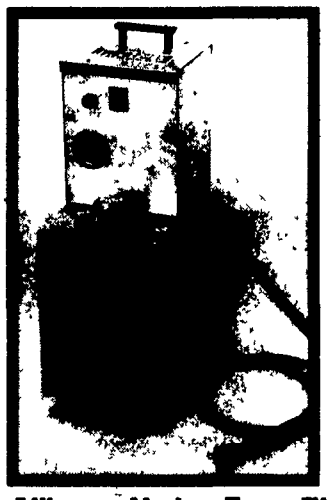
Consistent Delivery...



Arm Advance Sentry™ Electro-Mechanical Actuator

The Arm Advance Sentry™ arm control automatically monitors the length of time the cutter chain arm advances into the forage material. It also automatically cycles the time of material clean out. This advance-hold-advance-hold sequence results in more consistent delivery; less chance of bog down or reduced speed because of too much arm force; and more consistent loading of the motor. Only minor adjustments are required after initial dealer set-up -- even as the forage material changes.

Built-In Chain Oiling...



Alliance Hydra Force™ H.P. Oil Unit

Built in to the Alliance unloader are spray nozzles with the ability to force oil onto the cutter and conveyor chains when used with the Hydra-Force™ H.P. oil spray unit*. This mobile unit uses a high pressure pump design to force lubrication through the system. When used regularly, oil then penetrates through the forage material to effectively reach the top of the chain, underneath the side bars, and between pins and bushings.

Plus...Uncomplicated Operation and Maintenance Features

- New flared nose trough* for increased discharge capacity of the conveyor chain
- New backbone design features built-in floor supports and backbone wear strips
- New greasing system greases center post shafts and bearings plus all gears
- New arm support wheel has a 33% greater width plus increased depth of hardness
- New high torque 10 horsepower motor and control

Once A Refugee, Now A Farm Wife, Ruth Tells Her Story To Raise Money For Pennsylvania Relief Sale

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTSVILLE, Md. — Ruth Reimer Yoder remembers what it was like to be a refugee.

Now, a farm wife living in Grantsville, Md., Ruth is often asked to share her life's story. In the last few weeks, Ruth has been speaking at several promotional dinners for the upcoming Pennsylvania Relief Sale, which helps needy families throughout the world.

Ruth was seven years old when she, her pregnant mother, and two siblings 8 and 10 years old fled their home in Danzig, Germany. Because Ruth's father was in the army, he could not be contacted.

The family boarded a small ship to cross the Baltic Sea. The small vessel was to transport them to a larger ship.

But the larger ship hit a sea mine, and the family watched it sink, realizing their own narrow escape. Later, their own ship was damaged by enemy air attacks.

Because several soldiers on deck were killed and the ship developed a leak, the captain steered the ship toward the closest shore — Denmark.

"They graciously allowed us ashore," Ruth said.

During the end of World War II, thousands of people were fleeing Germany. The refugee camps were crowded and food was scarce.

A piece of bread and a thin soup was served daily, but it was never enough to satisfy their starving stomachs.

"I remember standing outside the camp's kitchen window. Whatever they threw out — pea shells, outer cabbage leaves — we devoured," Ruth said.

As a special treat, muskrats were cooked in the soup that was served for Sunday dinner. "We (the children) thought it tasted so good because it was meat, but mother didn't share our sentiments because she had helped prepare the muskrats," Ruth said.

Shortly after their arrival, Ruth's mother gave birth to a baby girl.

The survival rate of children in the camp under three years of age was low because sanitary facilities were poor. There was no hot water and soap. The baby contracted boils all over her body. Doctors cut open the boils to drain and treat them with a special solution. Ruth's baby sister survived only to later contract a severe digestive illness. The baby was taken to a hospital outside of camp. While there, she was pronounced dead and her crib was put outside.

But a passing nurse noticed she was still alive. The nurse took the baby home with her and nursed her back to health.

While in the camp, the family was delighted when workers with the Mennonite Central Committee (MCC) handed out care packages.

One of the first items they were given was a blanket, which Ruth's mother cut into several pieces in which to wrap the newborn baby.

"One great thing is that our whole family including my grandmother suvived," Ruth said of this picture of the Reimer family, which was taken in 1949 soon after their release from being in a refugee camp for more than three years. From left front row: Ruth's grandmother, mother, Heidi, father and Dieter. Back row from left are Lisa, Hans, and Ruth.

"I also very well remember Peter and Elfreda Dyck from MCC coming into the camp and having Sunday School with the many children there. They even handed out little picture cards, something special for us children. We also received pencils. How happy we were!"

Although the war ended soon after the family's arrival at the refugee camps, there was no place for the 30,000 refugees to go. They were considered civil war prisoners retained in a barbed wire fenced area and guarded by men with guns.

During the first year the family spent in the refugee camp, they were uncertain whether or not Ruth's father was alive. Through the tracing services of MCC, her father was notified of the family's whereabouts, but they were unable to be reunited with him until after the family had spent 3½ years in the refugee camp.

Ruth, her mother, and brothers and sisters were put on a train for nothern Germany.

"I still remember my father meeting us at the train station. It was night."

Although relieved to be reunited as a family, the family was totally destitute. In the refugee camps, they had at least received bread and soup every day.

Ruth's father worked for a local farmer, but the $17 monthly wage was not enough money to support a family. Ruth's mother helped with the milking and the children hoed, picked potatoes, and did other odd jobs in exchange for a piece of bread or an occasional dime.

"We were happy with whatever we were given," Ruth said. "But it was very difficult surviving."

Again, MCC came to the family's rescue. On a regular basis, they sent food such as flour, apple butter, and canned meat.

When we butchered one chicken, we ate everything — feet, head, and neck. One chicken needed to make two meals for seven people.

During the time in the refugee camp, the children received no schooling. When they settled in nothern Germany they returned to school.

"I still remember that first day. I wanted to sink through the floor, I was dressed so awful compared to the families who had remained in the area," Ruth said. "In Denmark, everyone was poor, so it hadn't bothered me before."

Schoolwork too was difficult. Having missed so much school, she and her siblings were uncertain during those first few months exactly what they were to be doing. But Ruth managed to stay in the class with her peers.

Because the family had settled in a different part of Germany than where they had lived before the war, they were considered refugees and treated as second-class citizens. They were not encouraged to continue schooling and the local residents did not want their children to associate, much less, marry the refugees.

One of Ruth's classmates had broken her arm. Ruth went to her home to write her lessons.

"The people were very rich and treated me nicely," Ruth said. "At Christmastime, they gave me a box with a doll baby and goodies. I was the only one in her family to get such a nice present," Ruth said.

There were other German refugee families scattered all over North Germany. MCC asked Ruth's father to be a relief distributor in the area.

During these years, American young men went to Germany through a Pax program. "Pax is Latin for peace. Instead of coming to our country to destroy, they came to rebuild," Ruth said.

One of the areas, called Espelkamp, had been an ammunition storage and arsenal, which hadn't been found and destroyed. The bunkers and barracks were used to house refugees and the PAX boys who built houses for them.

Eventually Ruth's family was the recipient of one of the houses the PAX people built.

"Otherwise it would have been impossible for us to own a house, but the labor of the PAX boys counted as downpayment and again we were grateful," Ruth said.

HOMESTEAD NOTES

After eight years of schooling, Ruth worked in a weaving and knitting factory.

When Ruth was 23 years old, she married one of those Pax American boys — Kenneth Yoder. After they were married, they returned to the U.S. in 1960 and settled in Grantsville, Md. They live on a 237-acre dairy farm that has been in the Yoder family for many generations. The Yoders milk 80 cows on their farm named Cornucopia. The prefix for their registered Hosteins is Schoenenberg.

Ruth's husband Kenneth is also an ordained minister at Oakdale Mennonite Church.

The Yoders have seven children, who are now adults. Heidi Dwight and Annetta help on the farm and take courses at a nearby community college. The Yoders' oldest daughter Sylvia married to Bill Mast and their three children also live on a diary farm and milk about 120 Holsteins. Isolde is a secretary and has two children. Karen and Marvin Tice recently had a baby, Dirk and his wife Karin have a construction business and are expecting their first baby in April.

"My experience in a refugee camp taught me what it is to get along with a lot less. I still don't like to throw things away," Ruth said.

"We raised our children differently, too. They often recall that when they came home from school, they were never allowed more than two slices of bread for a snack. Although they complained then, now they say they are grateful because none are overweight," Ruth said.

Memories of the camp continue to influence Ruth. She said, "In camp, we had turnips brought in by the truckload. The turnips were cooked in everything. I haven't eaten them since."

In Denmark, benches were the only seats available. When the Yoders had seven children, Ruth's husband remarked that they should have a bench to sit on at the table because it allows more people to sit in a smaller area.

Ruth was aghast. "I didn't want a bench in my house because it reminded me of camp," she said.

Since Ruth was the only one of her family to move to America, she and her husband returned to Germany many times to visit family members. Her father died in 1988, and her mother last year. This year, for the first time, her two brothers and two sisters plan to visit Ruth in Maryland.

Ruth and her siblings have never forgotten the hope extended to her family through the help of MCC.

"Until you live through it (being a refugee), you cannot realize how such help is appreciated." She said, "Besides providing material help, the MCC personnel had a big influence on our spiritual lives by showing us the way to Christ."

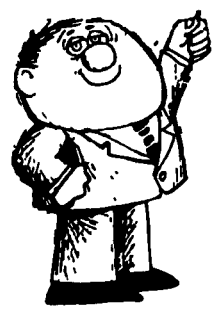
The Relief Sale is one way that thousand of people work together to raise money for families like Ruth's. The nonprofit event includes a heifer sale, house against hunger, arts, crafts, flowers, handmade quilts, wall hangings, antiques, homemade food, and many other items.

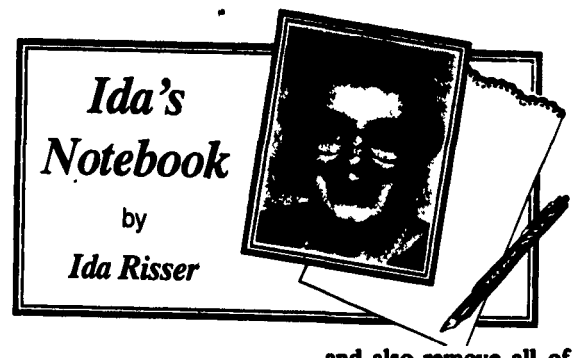
Proceeds from the Pennsylvania Relief Sale are channeled through MCC, which has about 950 workers in the U.S. and 50 countries.

The sale held annually the past 39 years has provided $7,719,450 for relief.

The sale will be held Friday evening, April 5, and Saturday, April 6, at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

All donations of useable items in good condition will be appreciated. For more information about the relief sale, call Esther and John Jacob Rutt at (717) 354-2471.





We had a pleasant visit with our daughter and her family in Texas. As a snowstorm was coming, we went to the Philadelphia Airport earlier than we expected to. Then our plane was more than an hour late leaving the airport and it had to be de-iced before takeoff.

As it was nighttime, we could see the lights of small towns and big cities as we attained an altitude of 31,000 feet. The Dallas/Fort Worth Airport was surrounded by more lights than you can imagine.

Our daughter and grandson met us. When we got to their home, we were met by two big dogs and two big cats. As they were house pets we had to get accustomed to living with them and they with us.

We were given a tour of Proctor and Gamble's "Folgers Coffee Plant" where our daughter works. All of their product is decaffeinated here. There were many silos filled with coffee beans. The caffeine that is removed is sold to soft drink companies. The company is very safety conscious and we had to wear safety goggles, hair nets and also remove all of our rings and watches. If only we were half as safety conscious on our farms, there would not be so many accidents.

We visited the Red River Museum in Sherman and learned about the historical background of the area. We also drove to Denison and saw the birthplace of Dwight David Eisenhower. Ike was born there in 1890. It was a modest two-story frame house. He was one of seven sons and his father worked for the railroad.

A Rev. Lancaster preached at the Methodist Church where we attended in Sherman. He jokingly told the congregation that Lancaster, Pennsylvania was named for him. In the afternoon we took a walk with the two big dogs on leashes. They pulled so hard to make us walk faster. It was cold in Texas when we were there, although some fruit trees had already bloomed. The redbud trees in the woods around their home were very pretty. I'll finish an account of our trip next week.

For allergy sufferers, the sneezing season is itching to begin.

Road repair crews are harvesting a bumper yield from pothole season.

And for farmers, the M and M season is well under way — Mud and Manure.

Mud is a mixed blessing. On the plus side, it's an indication of moisture in the ground. When the soil is too dry, too early, it often portends a dusty planting time of poor germination and growth. Corn, hay and soybeans generally grow better in mud than in powder. If you can get them planted.

However, as the frost thaws from the ground after a winter of plentiful rain and snow, it leaves the soil in a state of sticky muck. That dries and solidifies only after several days of dry, windy weather — of which we haven't yet seen much. And, ground water is at a plentiful level this spring, further encouraging the layers of mud that seem to spring up around the farm with each new round of moisture from the sky.

Which takes us to the down side of mud's dual personality.

"Mud means moisture for crops" becomes my mantra, repeated and repeated each time I mop up the muddled pattern of dirty footprints from the front door to the refrigerator to the coffeepot to the back door to the upstairs.

"Mud means moisture for crops" is my refrain of choice while lamenting the gook-encrusted blue jeans and coveralls and gloves and hats as they get piled into the washing machine. (How do hats get so muddy, huh?)

"Mud means moisture for crops" I chant while shaking out the car's dirty floor mats, hosing down the milkhouse floor, and sweeping off the porches after the sticky ground dries to a more removeable commodity.

"Mud means moisture for crops" comes grumbling from between gritted teeth while trying to wash Mistletoe's teats before milking her. Mistletoe is an old cow with a lower-than-ideal udder; she also has a talent for spotting a mudhole in any corner of the cattle lot.

Of course with Mistletoe, it's hard to tell where mud stops and manure begins. Which — come to think of it — is equally true of the spots on the floor, the cruddy barn clothes, cat mats, porches, etc.

Because, with the thaw, manure hauling can begin. Ideally, manure should be put on fields as near as possible to the time it will be worked into the ground for planting, before the nutrients leach away. This is not a job that can be done in a day, or even in a week, so cleanout must begin as soon as the ground firms enough to support equipment without harming the soil through compaction.

Even after fields have firmed, the field roads that lead to them quickly become sticky, muddy passages with repeated passes of equipment. And that sticky muck glues itself into tractor and spreader tires, which are like the tread on tennis shoes, with oodles of traction-grabbing gaps and gullies. And for picking up — and dropping — mud.

So after a day or two of hauling, even the paved roads around the farm have accumulated a coating of mud. Blacktop around the buildings where the manure pack is being removed accumulates mud. Every shoe, every boot that passes over any of these spots picks up some mud. The dog's feet pick up mud. The cat's paws add more.

April showers are supposed to bring May flowers. Hopefully they'll also help wash away March's most plentiful farm commodity, a hybrid agriculture product developed right here in our back yard.

Mudnure.

Dairy Promotion Scholarship Awards

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Tammy Donahoe of Frankfort, New York was awarded the 1996 American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) Memorial Scholarship. Robert Wilson of Dansville, New York was awarded the 1996 Leo Briggs Memorial Scholarship. Both $500 scholarships were presented at the New York State Dairy Princess Pageant on Tuesday, February 20, at the Four Points Hotel by Sheraton, Liverpool, New York.

The daughter of Gordon and Nancy of Don-Dale Farms, Donahoe studies agricultural journalism at the University of Wisconsin at Madison. Donahoe is an active member of the Badger Dairy Club, National Agri-Marketing Association, and the Post Secondary Agricultural Student Organization. With a 3.68 grade point average, she is a member of Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society. Donahoe is a member of the Oneida-Herkimer-Montgomery County Holstein Club and the New York State Junior Holstein Association. Donahoe received an associates degree in agribusiness from SUNY Cobleskill and served as ADADC's 1995 communications intern. Upon graduation, she hopes to return to New York and start a career in agricultural journalism.

The $500 ADADC scholarship was available to former dairy princesses who are pursuing careers in dairy product marketing, dairy manufacturing, home economics, ag communications or journalism.

Tammy Donahoe is the Memorial Scholarship Winner.

Robert Wilson is the Leo Briggs Scholarship Winner.

The scholarship is offered in memory of several ADADC staff and board members for their contribution to dairy promotion.

The son of Robert and Donna, Wilson studies animal science at the University of Illinois. With a 4.8 grade point average (out of a 5-point scale), he was named to Alpha Zeta Agricultural Honorary Fraternity, where he serves as treasurer. He plays trumpet in the Marching Illini, concert, and basketball bands. In addition, Wilson serves as the vice president for the Illini Dairy Club and is a member of the Hoof n' Horn Club, (Block and Bridle Club), and the 1995 Meats Judging Team. He received a 1996 undergraduate research scholarship for the project he is conducting on dairy nutrition. Locally, Wilson is member of the Allegany-Steuben County Holstein Club, and was named a New York State Distinguished Junior Member for seven years. Upon graduation, he plans to study veterinary medicine and someday return to New York and operate a dairy farm.

The $500 Leo Briggs scholarship was available to any collegiate individual who has promoted the dairy industry by exhibiting leadership in dairy industry organizations. Founded in 1983, the scholarship was established as a tribute to Leo Briggs for his superior leadership in ADADC and other dairy industry organizations for 30 years.

ADADC oversees the management of the scholarship accounts; however, neither scholarship is funded by dairy farmer check-off dollars. As a result, outside donations are critical to ensure the future availability of these scholarships. Any person or organization wishing to make a donation to either scholarship may do so by sending their checks to: Stephanie Meyers, 219 South West Street, Suite 100, Syracuse, NY 13202-1205, payable to ADADC.

Windowsill Herb Garden

This is the second article in a series on growing herbs. Gardeners find growing fresh herbs a rite of spring.

Botanically, an herb is a seed plant. Herbs do not produce woody stems, but live long enough to develop flowers and seeds. Gardeners grow herbs to use in cooking, scenting, decorating and making medicines. The Brooklyn Botanical Garden "Handbook on Herbs" lists 73 different types of herbs, some of which are used in several ways. As your interest and needs increase, you can add variety to this list.

Easy to grow annuals herbs include anise, basil, chervil, coriander, dill and summer savory. Biennials include caraway and parsley. Perennials include chives, fennel, lovage, marjoram, mint, tarragon, thyme and winter savory.

Strong herbs include winter savory, rosemary and sage. Herbs strong enough for accent include sweet basil, dill, mint, sweet marjoram, tarragon and thyme. Herbs for blending include chives, parsley and sweet savory.

The garden soil used for herbs does not have to be especially fertile. Use little or no fertilizer at planting. Several bushels of peat or compost for each 100 square feet of garden supplies most herbs needs. Heavily fertilized soil generally tends to produce excess foliage low in herb flavor. Only foliage herbs like chives, parsley and basil can be fertilized lightly.

Drainage is the single most important factor in growing an herb garden. None of the herbs listed above will grow in wet soils. If the garden area is poorly drained the soil will have to be modified for any chance of success.

To improve drainage, remove the soil to a depth of 18 inches. Place a 3-inch layer of crushed stone or similar material on the bottom of the excavated site. Before the soil is returned to the bed area, mix sand and some compost with it to lighten the texture.

Check the drainage of your soil by first filling a container. Make a drain hole in the bottom, and observe how fast water passes through the column of soil in the can. After making drainage improvements, refill the beds. Fill the area higher than the original soil line to allow for settling.

If your soil is too wet to work this spring, be patient. Working wet soil can destroy the soil for many years. Soil in good condition is called "friable." Friable soil is loose-textured and composed of many well-defined particles with plenty of pore space between them. Think of a bowl of popped corn — each popped kernel represents a soil particle and the spaces between are pore spaces.

When wet soil is worked, the soil solution (the water in soil particles) allows the mineral fractions of sand, silt and clay to slide or run together, destroying pore spaces between particles. Actually, the particles collapse, producing material similar to what you'd have if you rolled each kernel of popped corn flat with a rolling pin.

You can tell if your soil is too wet to work by forming a ball in your hand. If the soil sticks to your fingers, it is probably too wet. If, however, the ball of soil holds together when released, but falls apart when you gently tap it with your finger, it is friable, has a good mix of soil, moisture and air; and is ready to be worked.

Damaged soil structure is slow to recover. It takes a number of seasons to separate the mineral fractions again and increase the pore spaces. If your soil structure is poor, incorporate organic matter and add limestone according to soil test results. It is far easier to keep your soil in good condition than it is to rebuild it. So be extra careful this spring and don't work your soil when it is too wet.

Candy Making Know-How

Twice a year at Easter and Christmas we run a candy feature. Every time, we face a dilemma — what to do with the many recipes we receive that list paraffin as an ingredient.

Paraffin, a petroleum product, is not approved by the USDA for human consumption. Nevertheless, homemakers have used paraffin for years as an ingredient in coating chocolate. They say it causes the chocolate to harden and gives it a glossy appearance.

Coating chocolate called confectionery coating does the same trick and is available wherever candy making supplies are sold. It is easy to use and approved for eating.

Although recipes using paraffin have been used successfully for years, we can not endorse an ingredient that is not USDA approved. Therefore some of these recipes have been changed to read to use coating chocolate instead of a mixture of paraffin and chocolate, which was submitted with the original recipe.

Sorry to change your family recipes — we never change recipes except in cases like these.

If you have any questions about paraffin or confectionery coating, the Cake And Kandy Emporium (CAKE), Village Common 2019 Miller Rd., East Petersburg, PA 17520-1624, is able to answer your questions in depth. Two phone numbers are available for your convenience: 717-569-5728 or 1-800-577-5728.

Here is some information from the CAKE about melting chocolate.

Confectionery coating melts at approximately 98 degrees and may be melted in three recommended ways.

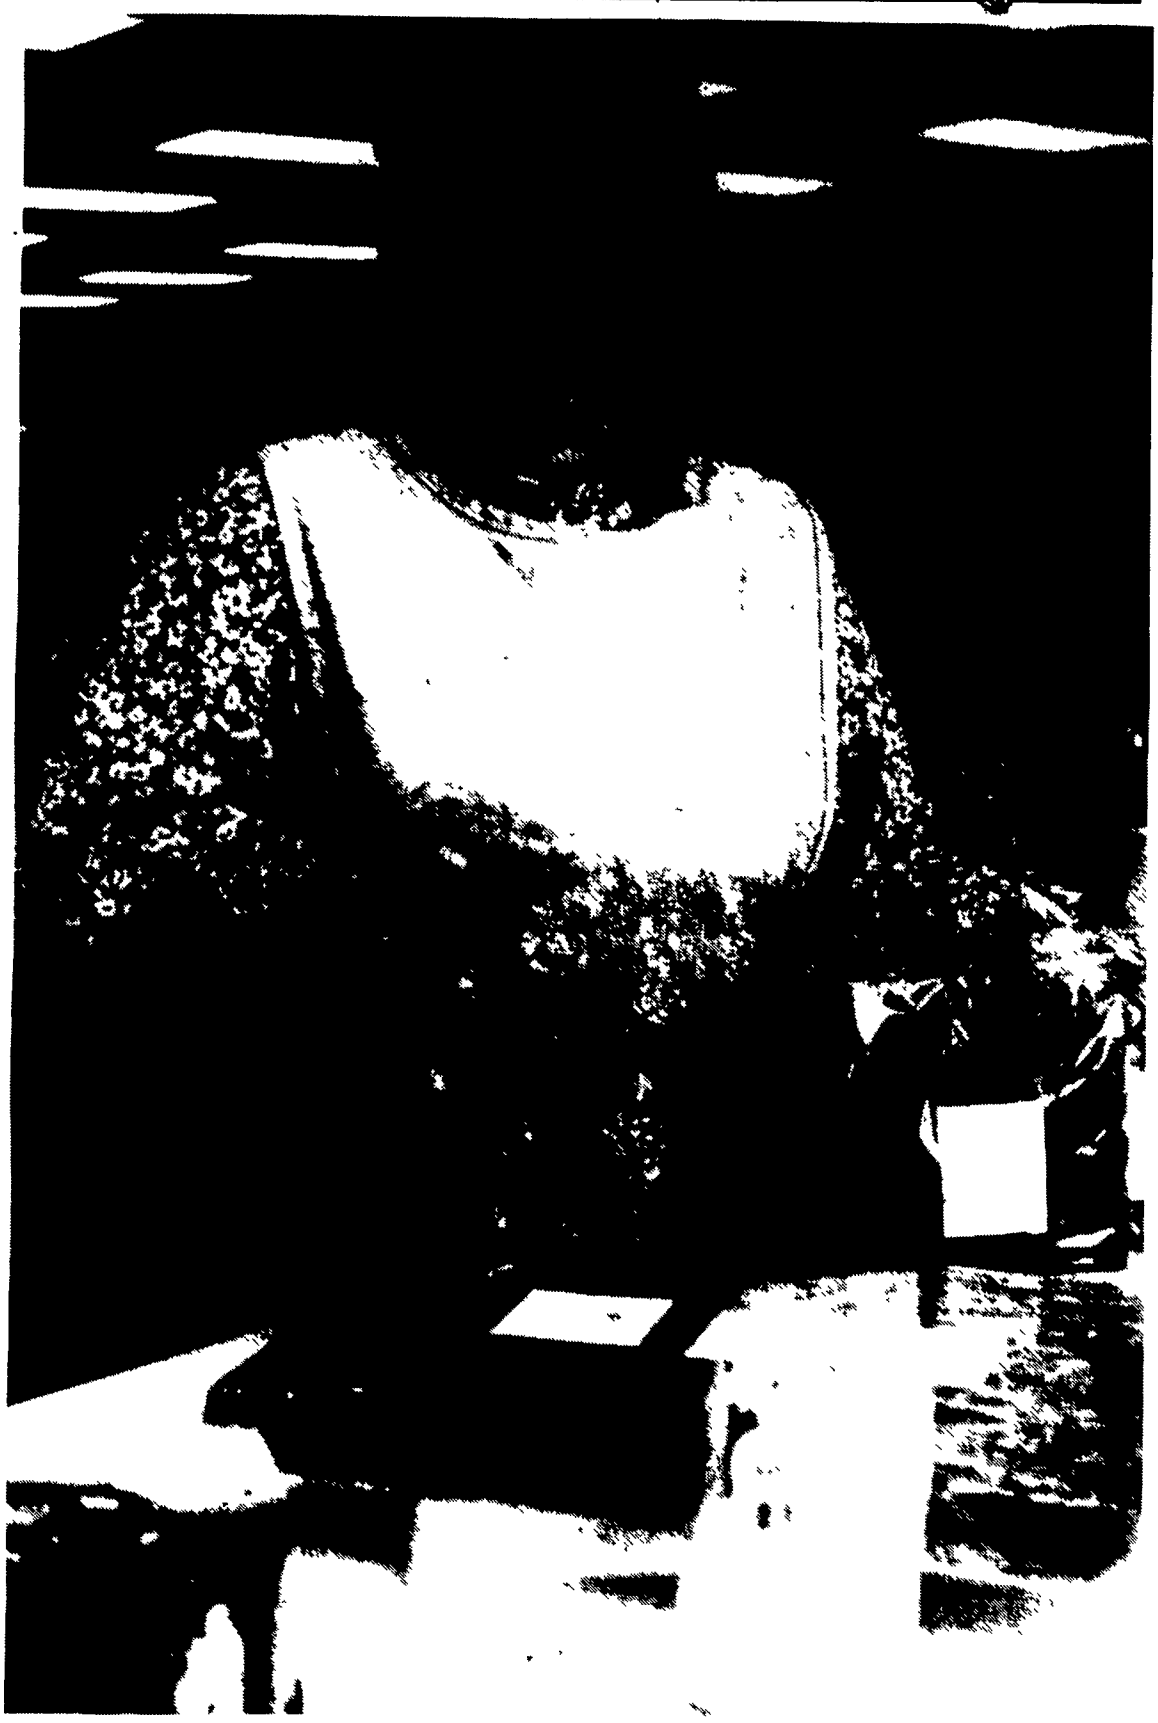
• Electric Fry Pan: thermostat set between off and warm; test temperature with hand—if it's too hot for your hand, it's too hot to melt the chocolate.

• Double boiler: never put coating on the stove. Heat water in bottom of pan of double boiler, remove pan from stove; place pan with coating over hot water making sure bottom of pan is not touching the water, stir gently while coating melts. If water needs to be reheated, do not put coating on the stove while reheating water.

• Microwave: take it easy. When melting one pound coating, place in plastic bowl that does not retain heat in microwave. Test this by heating bowl with some water in the microwave. Water should be hot but the bowl should not feel hot. Heat on medium (50% power) for 60 seconds; stir, 30 seconds, stir. Continue this until soft lumps remain. Remove from microwave and stir during standing time.

Lovely colors of white coating are produced by chocolate manufacturers, but you can color your own by adding powdered food coloring or liquid candy color with an oil base. You can flavor with Lorann oils. Never use flavorings or extracts as they will ruin the coating.

Painting with coating is produced by using a small brush, squeeze bottle or parchment cone. Paint small amount of coating in detail of mold, then fill remainder of mold with coating; put into freezer until entire front surface of mold turns cloudy (this indicates that coating has set and released itsef from the mold). Remove candy from mold. Molded pieces must be quick-set in the freezer; other candies set beautifully at a cool room temperature.



Diane Bollinger, store manager, shows off candy making supplies available at Weaver Nut Company Inc., 1925 W. Main St., Ephrata. The store carries an extensive line of coating chocolate in flavors such as peanut butter, Guernsey milk, bittersweet, cashmere, ermine white, butterscotch, variations from light to dark chocolates, and pastel colors.

Dairy Promoter Of The Year Goes To Catherine Rouse

SYRACUSE, N.Y.—The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) named Catherine Rouse, 1994-95 Washington County Dairy Princess, and her court as the Robert S. Turner Dairy Promoters of the Year. Presented at the New York State Dairy Princess Pageant on Tuesday, February 20, this award recognizes a New York county who has done an outstanding job of promoting milk and dairy products. Selection is based on the number and kinds of promotional activities conducted throughout the year.

Achieving 750 promotions, Rouse was assisted by her alternate, Jaci Stewart. They performed 178 school programs, recorded 424 radio and television public service announcements, generated 46 newspaper articles, attended 15 farm meetings and participated in 87 other special events. Together, they were named "Promoter of the Month" eight times and runner-up one time during their 12-month reign.

The daughter of Ed and Michelle Rouse of Cambridge, New York, Cathy is a freshman studying architecture and English at Syracuse University. An animal science freshman at SUNY Cobleskill, Jaci is the daughter of Richard and Mary Stewart of Hartford, New York. Both promoters agree that promoting milk and dairy products is something they'll never give up. As they continue their careers they'll always put in a good word for the dairy industry.

The Promoter of the Year Award is presented in memory of Robert S. Turner, who served 10 years as president of ADADC and seven years as president of the national organization. Then called the American Dairy Association, the national organization merged with National Dairy Council under his leadership, creating the United Dairy Industry Association as it is known today. According to the 1981 fall issue of "Promotion Focus," Bob convinced many people that "milk promotion is not just advertising. It's a total promotion concept."

Bob believed that local dairy promotion was an important part of the "total promotion concept," and is the reason this award is presented in his honor. The outstanding efforts of the Washington County promoters were acknowledged with a trophy and $500, provided by the Turner family and ADADC.

Kids Korner

Spring Things

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

The word "versatile," in the dictionary means several things. One meaning of versatile is "adaptable to many uses or functions."

In the following fun exercise, Kid's Korner readers will learn about something versatile that comes every spring. It has many uses.

Read all the clues and take a guess, then Kid's Korner readers can give the quiz to their parents.

CLUES

- Find me peeping at you through the dirt or in the grass
- I live in the country and in the city
- My stem is hollow
- Kids like to play with me
- Kids' noses get gold on the tip if they try to smell me
- When kids pull my stem their fingers get gooey with milk
- Kid make excellent jewelry with me
- Grownups eat my green leaves
- People dip me in pancake batter and fry me
- People pick bushels-full of me to make wine
- When I'm done blooming, I turn fluffy and blow away

ANSWER: Dandelion

POSEY

Roses are red,
Violets are blue,
Spring comes in March,
And winter is through.
Roses are red,
And violets will bloom,
But in springtime it rains,
And the thunder goes "boom!"

PUPPY

We got a new pup,
Who eats all his food,
And digs holes in the ground,
When he's in the mood.
Our pup like to play,
So we're teaching him tricks,
Like catching a frisbee,
or fetching small sticks.

TEETH

It's time for the dentist,
To check all my teeth,
I know he will tell me,
To stop eating sweets.
But milk builds good teeth,
So I drink it a lot,
To stop bad old cavities,
Or my teeth will rot.

SOCCER

It's time to play soccer,
The season is here,
For kids and their coaches,
To kick balls and cheer.
It's time to score goals,
Don't worry or fear,
Clever footwork will work,
Kick that ball right in here.
Then break for your bottle,
And guzzle it down.
Your team won the ballgame,
They are heroes in town.

There's nothing chicken about wearing a seatbelt.

THE LEADER IN THE FIELD

Ted Sipe rejuvenates "basket cases of tired iron." On April 6, Sipe is selling 30 of his restored antique tractors but keeping a few for tinkering.

Tinkerer Restores Vintage Tractors

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

ROCKWOOD (Somerset Co.) — Theodore (Ted) Sipe, who could probably be dubbed a "professional tinkerer," recently realized his collection of upwards of 35 vintage tractors, has finally outgrown their owner.

So he's letting them go the Saturday before Easter — April 6. He had put his heart and soul into restoring the rusty castaways and made them all operational, but now, at age 76, the widower and retired farmer is holding an auction of his prized collectibles.

He's keeping five, however, for sentimental reasons. Besides, "I gotta' keep something to play with," he said, grinning and looking somewhat impish about the metal hunks of "toys" arranged in several surrounding buildings.

The hobby that has spanned a quarter century, found Sipe over the years, rescuing the abandoned relics that previous owners simply left sitting where they had emitted their last chug. And, naturally, he bought them at sales.

On Saturday Sipe will bid his farewells to what once were his "basket cases of tired iron," like the 1925 Fordson, his oldest model.

His biggest model is the 1930 Minneapolis cross-motor tractor parked prominently, right inside the entry to his shop and garage amid an acrid, but not altogether unpleasant, smell of mingled grease and oil. The gray crank-starter and its smaller counterparts, including a 1928 Caterpillar 10, once used in an apple orchard, are wall to wall with narrow passageways between them.

Sipe was fortunate to find one of the 800, rare 1930 Rumely's, in Ligonier, Westmoreland County.

Generally, Sipe had little problem hiring transport for the apples of his hobby's eye, when he scanned neighboring places for them. Except, for the 1940 Minneapolis model he found in Accident (Garrett County) Maryland. It fell that Sipe, himself, would have to drive it 50 to 60 miles to his home just off Route 281. The long journey was successful, but only because, Sipe and his brother, patiently added oil every few miles to keep the "basket case" moving along.

"I used to help thresh with the Minneapolis (model) when I was a kid," Sipe reminisced, about his youth.

There's a John Deer GP, the two Silver Kings — 1937 and 1938, a 1929 Farmall on steel wheels; an Oliver 60 and an Oliver 80 from the 1940s; four Allis Chalmers' including the 1930 Allis Chalmers 2540.

A fleet of John Deere tractors — eight — are parked in alternating forward and backward sequence, in respect of space. Of two other John Deere tractors, one is styled and the other, a 1936, unstyled.

There's a Massey-Harris 33, F-20 and F-12 Farmall's, Ford 8 N and the Ford 7000 which isn't going anywhere.

"I'm keeping it," Sipe says. "The Ford is sentimental, I bought it."

His own 1948 S.C. Case tractor was spanking new, when Sipe bought it. "It was bought new on this farm," he said.

Looking around he espies a smaller piece of equipment, the Beaver sickle mower of interminate years. "God only knows its age," he said.

When his late wife, Eleanor (Meyers) had good health, she and Sipe did absolutely everything as partners. Eleanor was a petite ball of energy confined in a package of under five feet in height.

"My wife and I ran the farm all by ourselves," Sipe says. "I never touched a cow, I did the feeding. She stood on cement blocks (at milking time) because she was so short. She was wonderful with animals," he said fondly, adding that, after 52 wonderful years of marriage, she died in February 1995.

Their only child, a son, is a nuclear engineer whose home is in Connecticut.

It mattered little what job they were doing — driving tractor over the 250 acres that were Eleanor's homeplace, caring for the 40 Holsteins or dismantling another piece of tired iron — Sipe's favorite friend worked beside him, making his a rich life.

Haying season, especially, was enjoyed by Eleanor who worked with such vigor, the men had to hustle to keep pace with her. "She had a knack for unloading hay," Sipe said. "She could keep two fellows going in the mow.

"She was a go-getter. I was married to her for 52 years and I never heard her admit she was tired. She got tired, but she just wouldn't admit it," Sipe said.

However, they both took great pleasure in driving to church in the 1931 Ford Crown Victoria coupe that, with its original upholstery, is still in mint condition.

Unlike some couples where one

Some of the homes will have only downstairs rooms open while others have as many as three floors open for inspection. All will have chefs from area restaurants serving food specialties and a local florist will accent each room with floral arrangements.

The annual tour is sponsored by the General Federation of Woman's Club of Ephrata and will be held Monday, April 22 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

Tickets must be ordered in advanced. Cost is $8 each. Send a self-addressed stamped business envelope to Elsie Minnich, 1141 Joann Ave. Ephrata, PA 17522 or call (717) 733-1075.

Two of the homes on the tour are located in nearby Schoeneck.

• Tom and Amanda Phillips' home at 4 S. King St. was previously a hotel built in 1792. The three-story sandstone building has original random width floor boards. Amanda uses unique window treatments that accent the windows that are six over six panes with unusually deep windowsills.

Walls throughout the home are white washed and the handsome woodwork is painted in Sturbridge Village colors. The Shaker style kitchen cupboards are milk washed with blue paint and have wooden knobs.

The Phillips' home is open for three floors of touring. The home is tastefully decorated with antiques and Amanda's homemade quilts. An upstairs bedroom has a fireplace and a walk-in fireplace was inserted downstairs in keeping with the era.

• Steven and Tammy Hildebrand's home at 38 S. King St., Schoeneck is a victorian style stone home built in 1906.

The cherry raised paneled kitchen features a tile countertops and an eat-at island. The hanging tiffany light coordinates with the leaded glass window in the kitchen.

Tammy had a 10-feet long table and matching shaker hutch designed especially for the large dining room. The beam in the dining room is believed to have come from a nearby barn.

"I like the openess of the the house and the space," Tammy said of its ease in cleaning.

Steve, who has a remodeling business is always changing some new aspect to the couple's home. Tammy is no novice at remodeling either. She has removed paint from doors and wainscoating and stained them herself. She also stenciled several of the rooms.

Her collections of Longeberger baskets and Precious Moments figurines and anniversary plates are on display.

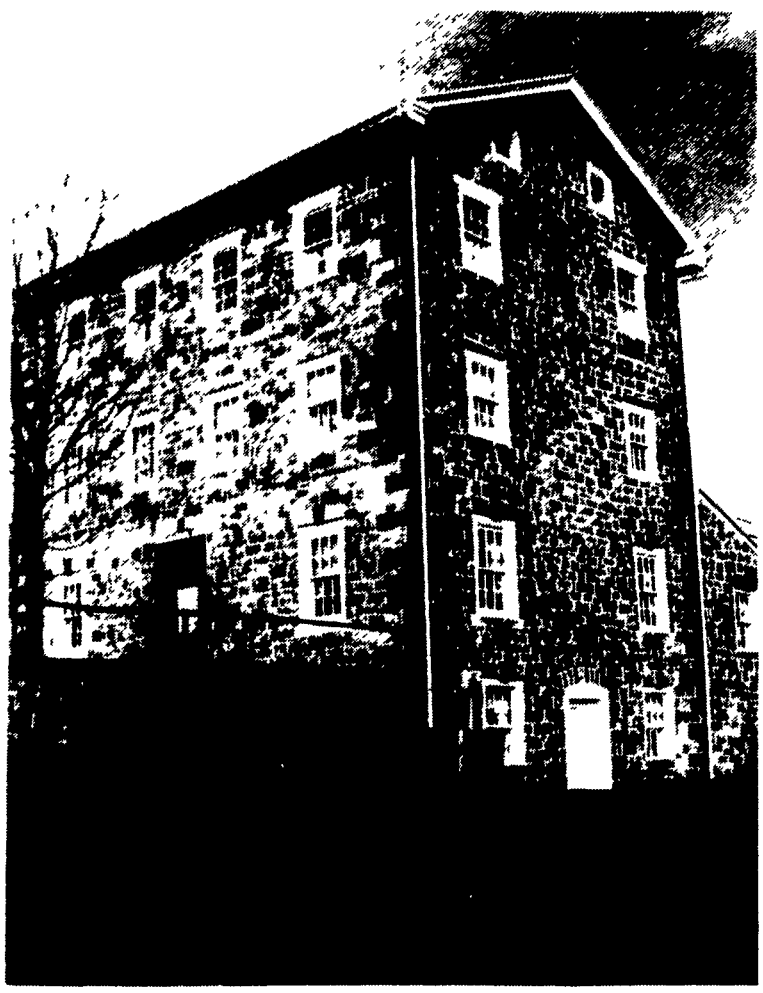
• Ephrata Church of the Brethren, 201 Crescent Ave., Ephrata

(Turn to Page B17)

Tammy Hildebrand and son Zachary sit at the island that separates the kitchen and dining area. The tiffany lamp coordinates with the leaded glass window in the kitchen. The cherry table was specialty made to fit the dining area.

Amanda straightens one of the quilts that she made. The bedroom also has an original fireplace in it.

Unique window treatments throughout the home enhance the beauty of the Phillips' home's deep-silled windows.



This 1792 sandstone home was once a hotel and later a restaurant. Now the fabulous home owned by Tom and Amanda Phillips is open for touring during the Kitchen Kaper Tulip Tour.

The floors in the Phillips home boast wide random width boards and lots of attractive wood work. A stove was inserted in the walk-in fireplace for practical living comfort. The home offers plenty of growing space for the Phillips' two children.

spouse has no interest in the other's hobbies, Sipe was blessed that Eleanor considered his tractor interests as much hers as his. The greasy menagerie that would have sent some gals running the opposite way, merely added fire to her energies. She dug in to help him remove the accumulated, filthy gunk, strip the paint and piece by piece, to completely dismantle them.

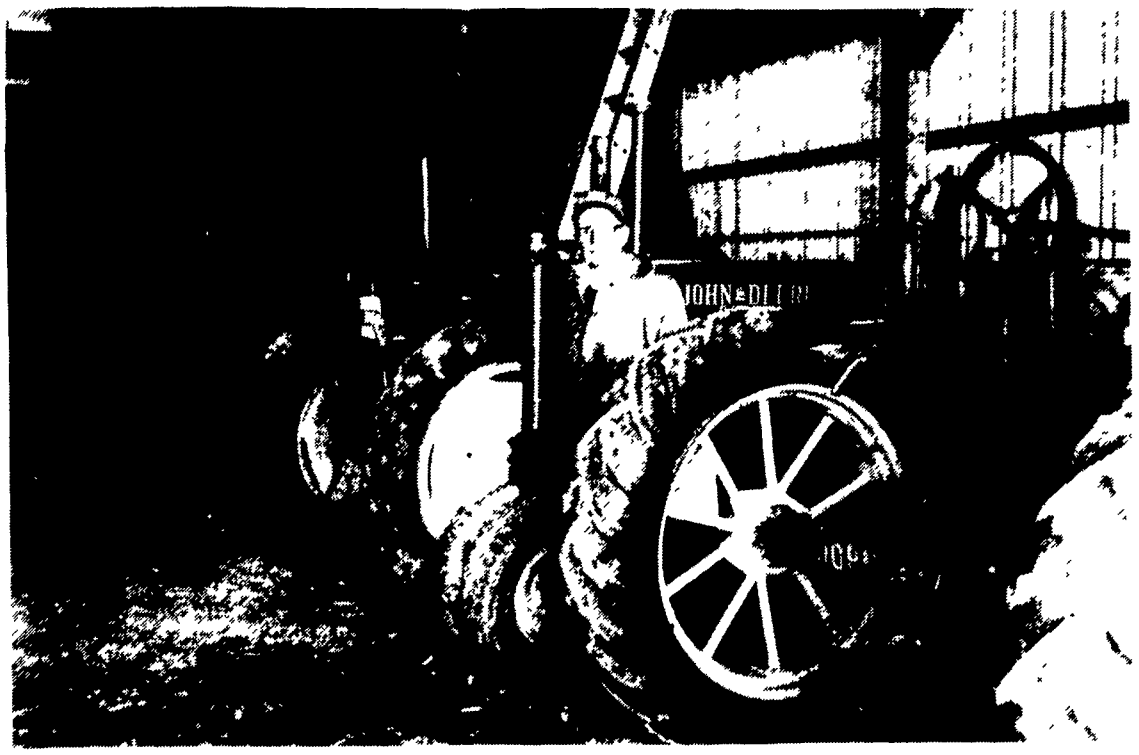
From there, she planted flowers by the hundreds, so that a passerby saw nothing but a bauer of blossoms. It's one of the memories noted by Sipe's neighbors — the beautiful beds that Eleanor always loved to create.

Now, his grand-nephew, Mark Sipe whose residence is his Uncle Ted's homeplace, spends companiable hours on end working and puttering with Sipe.

It's going to be different for Sipe without his collectibles and certainly, his contributions to the famed New Centerville Farmers and Thresherman's Jubilee held a few miles down the road, will be sorely missed next September.

But then you look and see Sipe in his coveralls, in his element among the myriad bolts, belts, screwdrivers, wrenches, cans of WD-40, paints and more. It isn't quite believable.

Somewhere out there another basket case is waiting for Ted Sipe to find it. He will.



A fleet of John Deere tractors belonging to Ted Sipe won't stand in neat order in his pole barn once they are sold at auction on April 6, near New Centerville, Somerset County.

Envirothon Competition

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — The third annual Montgomery County Envirothon will be held on Friday, May 3 at Robbins Park in Upper Dublin Township from 8:30-1:00. The Envirothon is a National Program in which high school students compete in teams of five, testing their knowledge of environmentally important areas. There are four standard topics of concentration: Aquatics, Forestry, Soils, and Wildlife. The fifth topic, or the "special topic," is changed each year by the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). This year the special topic is Greenways. The team which gets the highest combined score from all five tests will represent Montgomery County in the State Envirothon which will be held at the Philadelphia Power & Light Montour Preserve in Turbotville on June 22.

A major source of funding for the County Envirothon was received through a donation from the PECO Energy Company.

Any teachers who would like additional information about the program or about entering a team from their school should contact Jeffrey McKenna from the Montgomery County Conservation District at (610) 489-4506.

Grandparents! What A Blessing!

As a young girl, I looked forward to my grandmother staying at our house because she always listened to my "problems." As a college student, she spoke to me as an "equal" about male-female relationships. As a new wife, she gave me marital advice that I continue after 20 years to heed. As a young mother, she was always there when I needed that extra hand. Today, even though she is gone, what she gave me can be best described as a true blessing that lives on.

The bond between grandparents and children is truly a unique experience. Grandparents are fortunate to play a role that parents cannot always play. They can share experiences, thoughts, and advice without grandchildren giving them an "attitude" or "turning them out." An important aspect of their relationship with grandchildren is that they usually have the time and patience for grandchildren. This resource often runs short for parents.

The relationship between grandparents and children is very special. Inviting children to lunch, going to a movie, eating breakfast out, or just to riding along while they perform their errands is a special treat. In fact, when a grandparent's invitation is extended, it is probably the quickest I have ever seen my children get out of bed in the morning. It doesn't matter what time it is when the call comes through, they are always ready and willing to hit the road with grandma or grandpa. They don't move this quickly even for their best friends!

Grandparents are often the most influential in encouraging children to try new activities, to continue their education, and even to help them determine the career that they choose. They also serve as a link between children and their extended family history, as well as a window into the life of an older person.

Grandparents are wonderful teachers, role models, care providers, and mentors. What grandparents say is gospel and don't ever try to dispute it. They teach things to your children that you would never begin to know how to accomplish. Somehow they do it without receiving the least bit of resistance. You as a parent may have fought tooth and nail with your children to accomplish the same task.

Why does this happen? This is where the blessing part takes over. Granparents can be friends, unbiased adults, and sources of unconditional love. They can get your children to try new foods, ride peacefully with their siblings in the back seat of a car, complete a long homework assignment without tears, and clean a bedroom that could be condemned by the state board of health. Grandparents are the blessings that we must humbly as parents should say, "Thank you." Keeping this in mind, our payback as parents will be that someday we will play the same role and help our grandchildren through some of the same rough roads in life.

Farm Women Societies

Berks

Seven members of Group 9, Berks Society of Farm Women met at St. Paul's U.C.C. Amityville. The opening question was "What Do You Remember of the Blizzard of 96?" All programs will be moved ahead one month because of January's weather. Old and new business was discussed. In March a medieval feast will be sampled with members making various foods to be shared. The meeting was adjourned for a by-laws quiz, a what-your-partner was wearing game, and a match the nighty with the owner game.

Lancaster Society 20

Lancaster Farm Women #20 met at the home of Vera Herr, with Jean Ressell as co-hostess, on Thursday, March 7. For the program, officer Pat Kelly spoke on "Safety." She gave many examples where we can be more protective of ourselves and our property. Never let strangers in the house; do not give out your Social Security numer; never give out financial information regardless of who the one inquiring says they are; keep the doors locked; when away for a period of time have a friend take in the papers, mow the lawn so the place looks lived in. She gave out pamphlets listing many ways of security.

Vera read for the Scripture Psalm 121 and Jean gave the reading "You Mustn't Quit." The Lord's Prayer was prayed in unison and the Pledge of Allegiance was said. For the roll call if members weren't wearing green it cost them 25¢.

For the business meeting the president, Marie Foose, presided. It was a pleasure to have a new member, Helen Harnish, installed. Dorothy Crawford reported 2 cards sent during the month. The president reported that May 18 is the day set for the bake sale at TownsEdge. The meeting closed by singing "Brighten the Corner" and in April the meeting will be at the Memorial United Methodist Church in Quarryville in the form of a covered dish luncheon.

Berks Executive Society

The bi-monthly meeting of the Berks County Farm Women Executive Board met recently in the auditorium of the Agriculture Center with 20 members in attendance.

President Wendy Lingle opened the meeting.

Jane Kramer of Group #8 had devotions. Roll call was answered by telling what each person did during the 1996 blizzard.

The April bingo at Berks Heim will be held on Tuesday, April 9, at the Annex at 7 p.m. The November bingo will be held on Thursday, November 14 at the main building. Each group is in charge of bringing prizes.

All members planning to attend the State Convention in Harrisburg will receive a refund due to the cancellation of the convention.

The Farm Women Spring Rally will be held at Seven Springs, hosted by Somerset County on Tuesday, May 28. Theme - Happiness Is. Each group is responsible for ordering their tickets. Barbara Kintzer will check into getting a bus for the trip.

Group #3 is in charge of planning the County Convention to be held on Saturday, October 5.

Berks Society 4

Berks County Society of Farm Women Group 4 held its March meeting at the Pottstown Leader Nursing Home with a birthday party for Evelyn Becker who was 80 years old on March 7.

President Virginia Taylor reported the Spring Rally will held on May 28 at Seven Springs Resort in Somerset County. Bingo for Berks Heim Annex residents will be on April 9.

A monetary donation was made to Boyertown Area Multi Service toward the membership appeal.

Easter baskets for shut-ins will be made at the April 2 meeting at the Boyertown home of Charlotte Mauger.

QUESTION — Mrs. David Fisher, 1068 Back Maitland Rd., Lewistown, PA 17044, is looking for "Engine Whistles," the fifth reader from the Alice and Jerry series by Row, Peterson, and Co.

QUESTION — Al Freysz, Middletown, Md., would like to know where to obtain parts for a Bonanza apple parer.

QUESTION — Bill Sherwood, Beavertown, is looking for two items. One is a kid's wagon made by Sherwood Company with the name Sherwood printed on the side. The other is a goat wagon. Both should be older models that are in good shape and priced reasonably.

QUESTION — Sandra Laughman, Hardin, Mo., wrote that she read about a woman who creates pickled fabrics. Sandra would like information on the procedure and ingredients to use.

QUESTION — David Hoover, Ephrata, wants to know if Joseph Barr one dollar bills are collector items. There are five in a set.

ANSWER — Kenneth Kensinger, Martinsburg, wanted to know how to get rid of powder post beetles or barn beetles from wooden structures. Thanks to Brenda Reinhart, Coopersburg, for sending the following instructions that she says may require a second spray application but works 99 percent on the first spraying.

Spray bleach on the wood where the beetles are located. Use a bottle with a sprayer. (A used cleaner spray bottle works well. Just clean it and fill with a liquid bleach). The spray will probably lighten the wood temporarily for several months but it kills the bugs.

ANSWER — Millie Thieme, Lothian, Md., wanted to know where to purchase a hand-turned bread maker. Thanks to Suie L. Trimble, who writes that she has one to sell. Contact her at 88 Woods Drive. New Providence, PA 17560 or call (717) 786-1348.

ANSWER — Susan Knaub, Dallastown, writes that the blooming onion cutters can be purchased from Zesco Products, 640 N. Capitol Ave., Indianapolis, IN 46206-6157. The list price is $708 but it is discounted to $354. Susan suggests trying restaurant supply houses also. A hint when making the blooming onions: soak in ice water for a few minutes between the cutting and breading stages to make it bloom.

ANSWER — Hazel Stahle, Dover, wanted the words to the following two poems. Thanks to L.Horning, East Earl; Anna Mary Shirk; Anita Moyer, Bernville; Mildred Miller, Hershey; Mrs. Clyde Stauffer, Port Trevorton; Blanche Morgan, Hegins; Anna Mary Rohrer, East Berlin; Sarah Zook, Lititz; Rachel Himmelberger, Fleetwood; and others for answering.

Ballad Of The Tempest

We were crowded in the cabin:
Not a soul would dare to sleep—
It was midnight on the waters,
And a storm was on the deep.

'Tis a fearful thing in winter
To be shattered by the blast,
And to hear the rattling trumpet
Thunder: "Cut away the mast!"

So we shuddered there in silence,—
For the stoutest held his breath,
While the hungry sea was roaring,
And the breakers talked with Death.

As thus we sat in darkness,
Each one busy in his prayers,
"We are lost!" the captain shouted
As he staggered down the stairs.

But his little daughter whispered,
As she took his icy hand:
Isn't God upon the ocean
Just the same as on the land?"

Then he kissed the little maiden,
And we spoke in better cheer,
And we anchored safe in harbor
When the morn was shining clear.

James T. Fields

Wynken, Blyken, and Nod

Wynken, Blyken, and Nod one night
Sailed off in a wooden shoe—
Sailed on a river of crystal light,
Into a sea of dew.
"Where are you going, and what do you wish?"
The old moon asked the three.
"We have come to fish for the herring fish
That live in this beautiful sea;
Nets of silver and gold have we!"
Said Wynken, Blyken, and Nod.

The old moon laughed and sang a song,
As they rocked in a wooden shoe;
And the wind that sped them all night long
Ruffled the waves of dew.
The little stars were the herring fish
That lived in that beautiful sea—
"Now cast your nets wherever you wish,— Never afeard are we!"
So cried the stars to the fishermen three,
Wynken, blyken, and Nod.

All night long their nets they threw
To the stars in the twinkling foam,—
Then down from the skies came the wooden shoe,
Bringing the fisherman home:
'T'was all so pretty a sail, it seemed
As if it could not be;
And some folk thought 'twas a dream they'd dreamed
Of sailing that beautiful sea;
But I shall name you the fisherman three:
Wynken, Blyken, and Nod.

Wynken and Blyken are two little eyes,
And Nod is a little head,
And the wooden shoe that sailed the skies
Is a wee one's trundle-bed;
So shut your eyes while Mother sings
Of wonderful sights that be,
And you shall see the beatiful things
As you rock in the misty sea
Where the old shoe rocked the fishermen three:—
Wynken, Blyken, and Nod.

March Means Making Maple Syrup

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — One of the pleasures of eating a pancake or waffle breakfast is to top off these breakfast foods with pure, sweet maple syrup.

As you travel the roads of Wayne County during the month of March, many maple trees along these roads will have pails or plastic tubing hanging from their sides. These pails and plastic tubing are collecting the sweet, watery sap that will be converted to maple syrup. The backyards of nearby homes are usually filled with a dense cloud of smoke-like steam. This steam is the result of the "boiling down" of the sweet sap into pure, maple syrup.

Backyard maple syrup production can be accomplished with a minimum of equipment. Basic equipment would include a brace and a 7/16 or 1/2 inch drill bit, some metal or plastic spiles, some pails, a shallow rectangular metal pan to boil the sap, a source of wood, some paper filters and some glass, plastic or metal containers for storing the finished maple syrup.

The type of maple tree best suited for maple syrup production is the sugar maple. Other maples can be tapped but the sugar content of their sap is very low. The average sugar maple tree has sap that contains about two percent sugar.

Maple trees should be at least 10 inches in diameter before they are tapped for maple syrup production. Bore tapholes at least three inches deep into sound wood. Drill the tapholes at a slight upward angle. Insert the metal or plastic spile and tap it lightly with a hammer to seat it firmly in the hole. Attach the pail or plastic tubing and watch the sap flow!

Sap flow from maple trees will not occur every day throughout the tapping season. The best sap flows occur when you have warm days and freezing night. A good maple tree can produce as much as 10 to 12 gallons of sap per season.

Sap should be collected and boiled down as soon as possible to produce high quality syrup.

The amount of sap required to produce a gallon of maple syrup varies, depending on its sugar concentration. If the backyard maple syrup producer boils down about 43 gallons of sap, the result should be about one gallon of maple syrup.

The process of producing maple syrup is one of concentrating the sugar in the sap through the process of evaporation. Heat is used to concentrate the sap and it also gives maple syrup its characteristic color and flavor.

To begin the evaporation process fill the shallow, rectangular pan with sap. Begin heating the sap to the boiling point, taking care not to burn or scorch the sap.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT BUYING CATTLE

With the purchase of outside cattle comes the risk of introducing diseases into your beef or dairy herd. The risk of contagious disease spread is great when purchased animals are added to the herd because:

• Disease organisms on the farm or origin for purchased animals may be different from the organisms in your own herd.

• Animals that are moved from one farm to another are stressed by trucking and change of environment — this makes them more susceptible to disease and more likely to shed disease organisms they may be carrying.

• Introduction of animals to a new farm environment is often done around the time of calving — a time of stress and reduced immune capabilities for most cattle.

Many different contagious diseases can be introduced by the addition of purchased cattle.

The following are common, economically important diseases frequently introduced to herds through purchased cattle. It is by no means a complete listing of all diseases which could be introduced with purchased cattle.

• Bovine Virus Diarrhea (BVD).

• Bovine respiratory disease (BRD) complex including IBR, BRSV, and PI3 viruses and pasteurella and haemophilus bacteria.

• Contagious mastitis — including Sterptococcus agalactiae, Staphylococcus aureus, and Mycoplasma species.

• Salmonellosis.

• Johne's disease (paratuberculosis).

• Digital dermatitis (hairy heel warts, strawberry warts).

• Interdigital pododermatitis (foot rot).

• Bovine leukosis virus (BLV).

Both your cattle and the animals you bring into your herd need protection against viruses and bacteria that can be transmitted from animal to animal. Vaccination of healthy animals will help prevent specific diseases from occurring.

Most producers do not know if the animals they are buying have been vaccinated or not.

The Pennsylvania Animal Diagnostic Laboratory System (PADLS) has developed a bovine prepurchase test protocol and submission kit for veterinarians. Prepurchase testing of cattle is important in order to reduce the risk of introducing some infectious diseases by carrier animals.

The animal samples should be submitted for testing and the purchased animals isolated for about two weeks at the site of origin prior to movement, or at the final destination. Test results will be provided within a two-week isolation period. Cattle can be treated for parasites and vaccinated during this period. Vaccination for specific diseases should be considered by the purchaser in consultation with a veterinary practitioner.

Negative results on the test samples submitted with this kit are not a guarantee that the animals are free of the agents, but represent the best indicator of disease status. Information on interpretation is provided with the test results. The information gained from testing can reduce the risk of introducing infectious disease through the purchase of cattle. Performing these test at one time reduces the sampling effort and cost.

Following is a checklist approach for buying cattle:

For purchased cattle:

• Know the herd of origin

____ herd testing for diseases of concern of you.

____ sale animal testing for diseases of concern to you.

Beef Backgrounding

While the team "backgrounding" may be relatively new to come, this beef production system is well known to both cow-calf producers and cattle feeders.

Backgrounding utilizes pastures and other forages from the time calves are weaned until they are placed in a feedlot. Calves generally gain 100 to 400 pounds, depending upon the available forages, ration fed, and length of feeding time. The weight gain affects mainly the muscle and frame and causes little fattening. This program is designed to achieve weight gains as efficiently and as economically as possible by making maximum use of forages, such as pasture, hay, and silage, and by using little or no grain.

Backgrounding programs were developed to reduce the overall costs of beef cattle enterprises and utilize crop residues and available pasture land. Backgrounding requires some additional time to finish an animal, but the savings realized from feeding less grain during the major growth phase generally outweight the extra time spent for finishing. Rather than feeding lightweight calves high concentrate rations early on, cattle feeders have begun buying heavier-weight cattle in order to reduce the grain requirements for producing finished beef.

To be profitable, backgrounding programs must have a readily available source of relatively cheap forages, a good supply of feeder calves, and a good market for heavier and leaner feeder calves.

Before beginning a backgrounding program, producers should plan their operation and research their potential markets carefully. They may want to put cattle in their own feedlot for finishing or sell them as feeders. Grouping cattle according to quality, weight, and sex will increase their value at market time. These factors should be considered when selecting cattle for backgrounding programs.

For more information, contact your county extension office and ask for the new Agricultural Alternatives fact sheet, "Beef Backgrounding," which includes information on forage management, calf selection and management, marketing and sample budgets.

Swine Producers Attend Animal Health Seminar

Even Without Medication, Segregated Weaning Works

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Even without medication, some form of segregated weaning can control troublesome swine diseases, depending on the age and immune status of the sow herd, according to a veterinarian who spoke at the recent Pfizer Animal Health Seminar.

Last week, Dr. Max Rodibaugh, DVM with Swine Health Services in Frankfort, Ind., spoke to more than 80 swine producers and agri-industry representatives at Yoder's Family Restaurant.

Rodibaugh spoke about the "factors of success" that swine producers can use to make a segregated weaning program work. They include the amount of antibodies in the pig's sera, age at weaning, and how the medication program is carried out.

A big factor is the actual layout of a so-called "segregated site." Some producers break the segregation down to three sites. Site 1 is the breed gestation and farrowing site, site 2 is the nursery, and site 3 is the finishing site. A true multiple segregated site includes site 1, a breed/gestation/farrowing site. Site 2 is the nursery, with a separate site for each house. Site 3 is the finishing site, with a separate area for each house.

Rodibaugh provided the results of one study conducted in 1995 on a producer site. The producer doubled the number of sows in the herd from 550-1,100, for a total of 22,378 pigs on site. The producer made use of nine new nurseries, joined together in a single hallway.

For an 18-day weaning age average, mortality and performance factors were improved. Mortality was 1.97 percent, average daily gain was 1.01, feed efficiency was 1.80, feed cost per hundredweight was $17.37 (the producer grew all his own feed). In-weight per pig was 11.68 pounds and out-weight was 75.09. Time in nursery was 65 days using all-in, all-out management.

The "reality" of the segregated program was that those pigs that performed best are ones in a room with little human or pig "traffic." Other management strategies kept tabs on feeding, environment, and disease. The attention to pig flow, weaning age, and strict disease controls kept disease problems to a minimum.

Rodibaugh provided information from other sources that shows how segregation improved the number of pounds of pork per sow. In one study, improving nutrients to the sow the first week of lactation had a positive effect in weaning to service and litter size.

Producers should seriously consider sow herd immunity, improve biosecurity, have a plan for unhealthy pigs and finisher variance, and periodically empty and clean the site.

Rodibaugh also presented management strategies for controlling porcine respiratory and reproductive syndrome (PRRS).

Working on factors to boost average daily gain (ADG) can mean improved gains on the profit sheet for producers, according to Dr. Alan Scheidt, DVM, Pfizer technical services. Each one percent change in ADG can mean an 83-cent improvement in feed efficiency per ADG per pig, a 42 cent increase in feed efficiency per pig, an improvement in mortality in the litter, and other boosts in overall, long-term profit.

To do so, more attention needs to be paid to the environment of the pig, according to Scheidt. Many diseases that are seen, such as mycoplasmal pneumonia and mycoplasma Hyopeneumoniae, can be caused by the following environmental conditions:

- Space meansuring less than 6-8 square feet per pig
- Greater than 150-200 pigs for the available air space
- Frequent mixing of pigs
- Exposure to older groups of pigs
- Nonsolid pig partitions
- Less than three cubic feet of space per pig
- Cold environments (cold weather enhances virus survival)
- Temperature fluctuations of greater than 4 degrees per day (spring and fall are worse times to control swine diseases)
- Greater than 50 parts per million of ammonia measured in the house.

Scheidt reviewed various vaccines available for treatments of mycoplasma, including Respi-Sure, which helps to reduce the severity of lung lesions as a result of the disease. Also reviewed was Amphigen, an adjuvant that increases the immune response of the pig to battle mycoplasma.

Donna Berry, Pfizer swine industry specialist, spoke about the benefits of Stafac, a growth promotant.

Stafac works to kill off the bacteria in the back of the pig's gut while preserving the bacteria that promotes nutrient use. The active ingredient in Stafac is Virginiamycin. Stafac helps to improve ADG, feed efficiency, and bring pigs to market in less time, regardless of genotype or diet. It is added at 25 grams per ton from 50-140 pounds per pig and 10 grams per ton at 145-245 pounds per pig.

Also, Dr. Paul Pitcher, DVM, University of Pennsylvania at New Bolton Center, told the producers that by using forward contracting, evidence shows there is nearly a 50 percent decrease in variability of production costs.

With the price swings evident in the market in terms of feed and prices paid for hogs, studies have shown that hedging provided a "tremendous reduction" in variability of receipts — up to a three-fold decrease in variability, according to Pitcher.

He told the producers that they must look to ways to reduce the "marketing disease."

Pitcher said, "The disease of poor marketing can be as costly as clinical outbreaks of infectious disease" on the herd.

After years of Broiler Pan Evolution, It's Time for a Revolution.

Everyone also knows manually adjusting hundreds of pans every couple of days is unrealistic. The income you would gain in feed efficiency would be lost several times over in labor costs. That's why the UniGROW360 system is so revolutionary.

NOW, YOU CAN QUICKLY AND EASILY ADJUST THE FEED LEVEL AS OFTEN AS YOU LIKE

This special winch enables simultaneous feed level adjustment of a line of UniGROW360 pans with a simple turn of the crank. Unlike other systems, it is not dependent upon level floors.

RADIANT BARRIER INSULATION

Kenneth Kephart
Associate Professor
Animal Science

Eileen Wheeler
Assistant Professor Agricultural And Biological Engineering

Protecting pigs from the elements is a major reason for keeping them in an environmentally controlled facility.

Part of the comfort we provide comes in the form of added heat during the winter months; another byway of increased ventilation rates during the summer.

Both modifications require energy and cost money. To minimize our energy expenditure and to make the building more comfortable and efficient, we insulate it.

Conventional insulation includes batt (fiberglass), rigid (polystyrene, etc.) and blown-in (cellulose). Another, less conventional form, is radiant barrier insulation.

It isn't new. And despite the fact that it has seen little use by the livestock industry, manufacturers periodically "re-introduce" the product as a new technology that we're ignoring.

Radiant barrier insulation functions and performs differently than conventional forms. The purpose of this article is to clarify what radiant barrier insulation does, and in regard to livestock housing, what it does not do.

Heat Losses During Winter Months

Heat losses from livestock facilities occur by three methods: conduction, convection, and radiation.

Conduction is the transfer of heat between two materials that touch. Sit down on a cold metal seat at a football game and heat flows from your backside to the seat. From a heated livestock building, heat is conducted through the walls from the inside to the exterior surface. Heat is also transferred from building materials, such as floors and lower side walls, to the surrounding earth.

Convection is the transfer of heat by movement of a fluid such as air or water. Convection can be natural as when warmed air rises, or forced, as with a fan. From a barn, heat losses by convection occur from wind, infiltration, and the ventilation system. Radiation is the transfer of heat energy (emitted and absorbed) between two surfaces that do not touch.

In a room with a hot wood stove, you feel the heat on the side of your body facing the stove even though you might be a considerable distance away. The hotter, closer, and larger the surface, the more intense the thermal radiation.

With our livestock building, heat will radiate from the relatively warm walls or roof to anything in direct view of that surface. When radiation strikes an object, it can bounce back (reflect); it can pass through (transmit); or it can be retained as heat (absorb).

Now, how does heat from inside the building get outside? By these three methods combined. For simplicity, let's say our barn is an unheated gestation barn full of sows in the winter. As the sows lie on the floor, heat from their bodies is conducted through the concrete into the cooler earth below. Heat from their bodies is also conducted to the air molecules that actually touch the sow. These warmed air molecules rise and set up convection currents within the room.

Both conduction and convection warm the air inside the facility, which warms the side walls and ceiling by the same means. Finally, the ventilation system will remove warm, moist air by natural or mechanical convection.

In addition, sows and warm objects in the room radiate heat in all directions. Little if any radiation will be transmitted to the outside. For most materials in a barn, only a small amount of radiant heat will be reflected, so the radiation (from the sows) tends to be absorbed by building surfaces. This thermal radiation, together with conduction and convection, will warm the side walls and ceiling. Some heat from the walls and ceiling will be radiated back into the room. The rest will be transferred to the outside surface by conduction.

Heat Gains During Summer Months

In hot weather, the situation is more or less in reverse. Higher temperatures outdoors warm the barn by the same three methods. Also, the sun's radiant energy is much more intense in the summer. That warms most of the roof and sidewalls. This heat can be then be transferred into the building.

Stopping Heat Transfer With Insulation

Actually, insulation doesn't stop heat transfer, it just slows it down. (Higher R values mean a higher "resistance" to heat transfer.)

Consider our sow facility during the winter. The inside wall surface is warm. That heat will be conducted through the wall materials to the outside surface and lost to the outdoors by a combination of conduction, convection, and radiation.

How fast will heat loss occur? That depends on several things, the most important of which is insulation.

How Does A Radiant Barrier Fit Into This Mess?

Radiant barriers are used to reflect thermal radiation. In winter, you want to reflect the radiant energy back into the building, and in summer you want to reflect the sun's radiant energy back out of the building.

Radiant barriers are usually made of aluminum, because of its excellent thermal reflective properties. They often look like heavy aluminum foil; in fact, they're two aluminized sheets separated by a porous material or thin layer of air bubbles.

When they come out of the box, radiant barriers do a good job of reflecting radiation. Most of the heat radiating from a cow or a sow or the sun will bounce back when it hits the barrier. But for that reflectance to be maximized, the surface must stay clean and shiny.

Radiant barriers (even those with air bubbles, commonly called Bubble Pack) are not too effective at stopping heat transfer associated with conduction. Because of this, radiant barriers must be installed so that little if anything touches one or both sides of the radiant barrier.

Keeping one side "open" reduces heat transfer by conduction and enables the radiant barrier to reflect thermal radiation. In fact, they work best if they're installed inside wall or ceiling panels adjacent to a thin (less than 2-inch) airspace. This keeps dust and dirt from accumulating and also reduces heat transfer from convective currents.

Should Radiant Barriers Be Used In Livestock Facilities?

When used alone, radiant barriers permit a lot of heat transfer by conduction. Unfortunately, some distributors may tell you otherwise. When they do, they're ignoring research studies by several institutions between 1985 and 1992. These studies showed the following:

- Radiation barriers by themselves offer little resistance to heat flow (an effective R value of 0 for foil alone, to 1 for Bubble Pack).
- When installed adjacent to a dead air space of a six-inch wall section, they increase the average R value of the entire wall section by about 1.9.
- The reflective properties are significantly reduced when the material is covered with dust or a small amount of condensation.
- Broilers grew faster when in a facility insulated with six inches of fiberglass compared to those in an identical building insulated with radiant barrier bubble pack. The house with radiant barrier required more heating fuel (2,700 extra gallons over 10 flocks).

In addition, condensation formed on the ceiling under the eaves, and after 31 months the reflectance of the radiant barrier was reduced by approximately 33 percent.

So, using a radiant barrier as the only insulating material is not wise in regard to operating cost or animal comfort.

What about using radiant barrier in addition to conventional insulation? To be effective, the radiant barrier should be installed next to a narrow air space inside the ceiling and wall panels. That is no easy task, but let's assume it could be done without altering wall or insulation thickness.

Typical cost of radiant barrier is about $.30/square foot. If we installed fiberglass in a six-inch side wall, the R value of the entire wall would be approximately 20.5.

Adding the radiant barrier (inside the wall, next to an air space) would increase the R value

SECURING A JUDGE FOR A JUNIOR LIVESTOCK SHOW

Everyone who has the uneviable task of securing a judge for a junior livestock show has a different method of operating.

During the past 11 years, I have found that the most effective system of securing a judge basically follows the seven-point guidelines that I have outlined below.

1) Start early. I have received calls in July asking me to judge a show in August. Some of these calls were out of necessity, as a judge who agreed previously to judge a particular show was unable to fulfill the obligation because of unexpected circumstances. This is understandable, but I find perplexing the vast number of "last minute" calls for judges.

To the opposite extreme, for the past 10 years I have received in December a letter or phone call asking me to judge a show during the third week in August. This is what I call "planning ahead" and "starting early." For most fairs in Pennsylvania that occur during the months of July, August, and September, initial contacts between fair officials and prospective judges should occur during February, March, and April.

Also remember, highly sought-after judges will have their fair obligations fulfilled earlier in the year.

2) Have a list of several potential judges. The most effective show committees develop a list of five or six potential junior show judges. During the winter months from November through February, names can be solicited from members of the committee, and potential judges can be ranked from one through six. This is also the most opportune time to compile phone numbers, references, and any other pertinent information needed to aid in the selection and securing process.

The likelihood is slim that the first person on your list of potential judges will be available and accept your invitation. By planning ahead and having several options, you can eliminate the need to call meetings repeatedly.

3) Call first and have the details in front of you. I have always appreciated speaaking with someone about the details of the show (date, time, what shows are to be judged, etc.) when they contact me to judge. Sometimes the initial contact is in writing, but invariably, I wind up calling someone with questions that I have regarding details of the show.

Having the details in front of you may require a little homework. Make certain the person making the contact understands any limitations imposed by the fair board concerning fees, expenses, and other limitations that would impede the process of securing a judge.

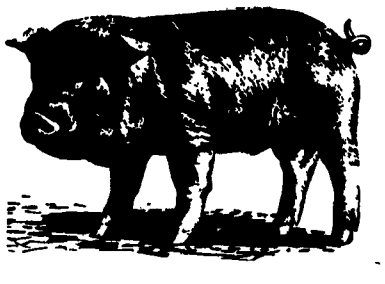
4) Ask questions. Every fair operates differently, and every judge operates differently. By calling and making initial arrangements over the phone, both fair officials and judges will have a better idea of the arrangements agreed upon.

5) Follow up in writing and enclose a postcard. After I tentatively agree via phone to judge a show, I ask that someone associated with the fair send me a letter of confirmation. This letter of confirmation should be complete and thorough. All of the details concerning date, time, location, directions, honorarium, expenses, lodging, meals, contact person, etc., should be provided in the letter of confirmation.

Lastly, one extremely good idea that a few fairs have used is a contract or pastcard to be signed and returned by the judge. By having the judge sign and return a copy of the letter or a postcard, fair officials know that they have a judge who has committed to judging a particular show.

6) Call or write one or two weeks before the show. A friendly reminder never hurts! It may save considerable embarassment to fair officials and/or the judge to make certain the no details have been overlooked accidentally.

7) Nobody likes surprises! Lastly, especially for those of you who judge shows, when was the last time you arrived at the fairgrounds expecting to judge a particular species, and at the conclusion of that show, a fair official approached you and said, "Now we only have three long-haired Milking Buffalo entered in this year's fair and we couldn't afford to bring in a judge solely for that class, would you mind judging them?" Ninety-nine times out of 100, most judges are glad to help out and I am in that group, but just once I would like the opportunity to look at my long-haired Milking Buffalo judging manual, glance at the LHMB Standard of Excellence scorecard, and brush up on the appropriate terminology before arriving on the fairgrounds!



Pork Prose

to about 22.4. Adding the radiant barrier so that it faces the room interior would increase the R value to about 21.5 (this assumes an expected loss of reflectivity in a swine barn environment).

The question is, would the increased R value (under the best of conditions) be worth the increased cost? Adding a radiant barrier to the side walls and ceiling of a 48-crate, insulated farrowing house (24 X 120, 6 inches of insulation) would add about $1,500 in material expenses. The expected reduction in heating costs would be less than $30/year — not enough to pay for itself in a reasonable time.

Why are the savings so small? Most heat losses in conventionally-insulated livestock facilities are via the ventilation system.

Would the radiant barrier reduce electrical consumption during the summer? As far as we know, that question has never been addressed in any research in a livestock facility. But a couple of things are clear. First, warm ceiling temperatures on a sunny day shouldn't be a problem if the facility is properly insulated. Second, we move a lot of air through swine facilities during the summer anyway. That will keep the ceiling temperatures even lower.

Bottom line: it wouldn't seem that electrical usage would change much with the addition of a thermal barrier.

Does foil-coated, rigid foam insulation have reflective properties? Yes, the same as those of the radiant barrier. Inch-for-inch, rigid foam insulation provides a higher R value than that of fiberglass batts, but at a higher cost. For example, a 6-inch thick wall insulated with fiberglass would have an average R value of about 20.5 (at a cost of $.30/square foot for the insulation and vapor barrier). A similar wall insulated with 2 inches of foiled-coated rigid insulation would have an average R value of 18.3 (at a cost of about $.68/square foot for the insulation). Producers sometimes choose the rigid insulation for ease of installation and also because it provides a natural vapor barrier as long as the joints are taped.

Summary

1. Radiant barrier insulation is designed to reduce radiant heat transfer.

2. When installed as the only source of insulation, even when a dead air space is incorporated in the wall or ceiling, it does not appear to perform as well as conventional insulation.

3. Dust accumulation, any condensation, and the corrosive nature of gases in livestock facilities will significantly decrease the reflective properties of radiant barrier within 2-3 years after installation.

4. Foil-coated foam insulation provides the same reflective property as that of radiant barrier.

5. Adding a radiant barrier to conventional (fiberglass or blown-in) will improve the R value of the system when installed properly. But the return on the investment is questionable.

Dekalb Granted Marker Technology Patent

DEKALB, Ill. — Dekalb Genetics Corporation said it has received a patent (#5,492,547) from the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office covering prediction of yield in corn using inherited genetic markers.

Breeders can create a molecular map or "fingerprint" of a corn plant using these methods, correlate the marker information with yield, and then predict the yield of progeny plants that have inherited these genetic markers.

The patent covers the use of any market, including RFLPs (Restriction Fragment Length Polymorphism), RAPDs (Random Amplified Polymorphic DNA), miscrosatellites and other polymerase chain reaction-based markers.

"Based on tests conducted by our researchers, we believe that DNA markers are an exceptionally useful tool in developing superior inbred and hybrid corn germplasm," said Bruce P. Bickner, Dekalb's chairman and chief executive officer. "Using computer analysis, breeders can predict yield without actually growing the plant. Only the germplasm with the highest predicted yield are then selected for evaluation in the field. This tool significantly enhances the ability of breeders to identify and advance superior-yielding germplasm. They are able to screen a far greater pool of germplasm than they could ever grow in the field.

Dekalb has announced several patents in recent weeks, including the first product patent covering insect-resistant corn plants with a Bacillus thuringienis (Bt) gene. The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office provides resistance to the European corn borer. Dekalb has also been granted a patent on the microprojectile bombardment method of transforming corn.

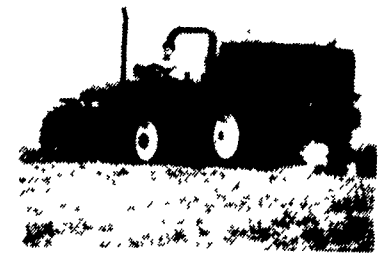
These new tractors produce very little smoke, they have low noise levels, and are easy on fuel. They have the features that are most important for tractors in their power class and options let customers fit tractors to individual requirements.

There's a choice of three transmissions: A 12x4 mechanical shift, 12x12 Synchro Command with shuttle and a 24x12 Dual Command™ with shuttle that provides on-the-go shift convenience under full load.

All 35 Series tractors with 12x12 or 24x12 transmissions feature a four-way joy-stick control and two remotes for loader work and other hydraulic applications.



The new four-model New Holland 35 Series tractors include 56,66,76 and 86 PTO HP units. Transmission include 12x4 mechanical shift, 12x12 Synchro Command™ with shuttle and 24x1 Dual Command™ with shutt for on-the-go shift under full load.

Technology At Home In Race Cars, Helicopters, Tractors

RACINE, Wis. — Technology that was outlawed on the Formula One racing circuit because it gave drivers too much of an advantage is now available for retrofitting on older-model tractors.

It's a Mechanical Diode® one-way clutch and, in addition to being used in military helicopters and race car dragsters, it's in new torque amplifiers that upgrade 06, 66, 86, and 88 International Harvester tractors.

And the new torque amplifier is only available from Case Corporation and Case IH dealers. The Mechanical Diode comes with a 15-year warranty on parts and labor when installed by a Case IH dealer.

"It's putting breakthrough technology of the '90s into tractors built in the 1960s and 1970s," said Chris Kelly, Case Corporation senior product manager. "It's part of our overall product-support philosophy."

The Mechanical Diode, developed by Epilogics of Los Gatos, Calif., boosts performance and extends the life of a torque amplifier by replacing a common cause of failure — the sprag clutch. Sprag clutches, like most conventional one-way clutches, are often the weakest or the first component to fail in automatic transmissions.

A torque amplifier is a two-speed power shift transmission module within a standard transmission. Since it is hydraulically actuated and shifts under power, it gives older model tractors the ability to be shifted "on the go," a feature not common to tractors built in the 1960s and 1970s.

While both the Mechanical Diode and a sprag clutch have the same basic purpose, the execution is very different. Kelly explains that for full power, a sprag clutch relies on the engagement of 30 separate cams to create a wedging action for lockup. With the Mechanical Diode, only one of its six struts needs to engage for lockup.

Torque amplifiers with the Mechanical Diode® one-we clutch — featuring technology used in U.S. military helicopters and race car dragsters — is only available from Case IH dealerships for retrofitting 06, 66, 86, and 88 Series International Harvester tractors. Shown here, the Mechanical Diode component, inset, greatly improves the reliability of the torque amplifier.

Greenhouse Growing Is Home-Based Business

SEVILLE, Ohio — Seeking a career change? Looking for extra income? Greenhouse growing provides the ideal home-based business.

Individuals looking for a home-based business of their own who are interested in greenhouse growing can now attend a two-day training workshop to learn the basics of greenhouse production. Two different workshops are offered.

Hydroponics, or soilless production of tomatoes, lettuce, and cucumbers, has become a profitable alternative to conventional agriculture, and it can be done on well under an acre of land. Prospective growers are encouraged to attend CropKing's two-day hydroponic Grower Training Workshop to learn how to grow successfully and profitably. Held monthly, these workshops provide hands on trainingin the greenhouse, as well as multimedia classroom training.

Bedding plant production also offers an excellent home-based business that is seasonal in nature and can be highly profitable. CropKing's two day Bedding Plant Workshop will educate prospective growers about this lucrative business and give them the information they need to get started. Classroom training, videos, and in greenhouse training will provide an excellent basis for the new grower to begin this "growing" business.

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21st CENTURY?"

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency: this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

Protect your valuable feeds from the elements... increase the efficiency of your feeds, your animals, and your labor.

At SOLLENBERGER SILOS CORP. we know a lot about feed storage and handling... we've been in the business since 1908. If your plans call for new feed storage, give us a call... we'd like to contribute to your success!!

"IT'S NOT WHAT YOU HARVEST, BUT THE AMOUNT AND QUALITY OF YOUR FEEDS THAT COME OUT OF STORAGE THAT COUNTS."

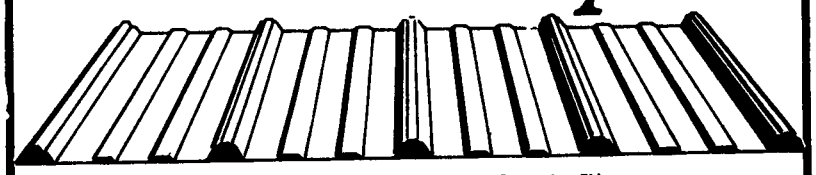
Rural Economy



Cost-efficient Centurydrain™ roofing and siding is on some of the best looking buildings in the country.

Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

Quality Trusses Must START with QUALITY LUMBER!

MSR Lumber

Truss lumber presents unique challenges! We cannot tolerate warp, bow or twist in the chords and maintain absolutely straight roof-lines and flat ceilings.

Years of selection has shown MSR (Machine-Stress Rated) lumber quite immune to such problems.

Further selection involves tree-species and growing climate. The close-grain, straight-grain, tiny-knot characteristics of SPF (Spruce-Pine-Fir) grown in the Pacific Northwest has come out best in further immunity - and has become the Black Bear Standard. Eastern and southern lumber simply falls short in those essentials.

Laser-Layout

LASER-LAYOUT of each truss on the assembly table verifies alignment and saw-cut of each chord, web and joint - plus size and positioning of each connector plate. At this stage with this lumber, what LAYS STRAIGHT, STAYS STRAIGHT!

HIGH TENSILE FENCE...THE FARMER'S BEST INVESTMENT

BEAVER FENCE SYSTEMS

Darren Peachey, Belleville, PA

"The spring of 1995 was a turning point for our dairy operation as we moved from a high input operation to an intensive grazing system. Intensive Grazing has been everything we hoped it would be. Our cows are healthier and we have less labor per cow. The life of our machinery will be longer. All in all it spells higher profits.

The first thing we did was talk to other people who were grazing to get ideas that we could incorporate into our dairy operation. We hired Beaver Fence Systems to build high tensile fence around the entire farm and we use portable fence to divide the interior into paddocks.

Today's dairy economy does not allow us to keep doing things the way we have always done them. We need to keep looking for more profitable ways of producing milk and managing our land. Intensive grazing has made our business more profitable."

WORK WATCH

The Work Watch Is Back!

In the mid-1980's we sold hundreds of work watches to hard-working individuals like yourself who needed an accurate, dependable timepiece. They needed a watch that would withstand the dust, moisture, bumps, and temperatures encountered on the farm, in the orchard, and in the woods. Many who bought the work watch told us it was the best watch they had ever owned. Now, due to the past success and the present need, we are again offering the work watch through Lancaster Farming.

Our work watch has all the features needed to endure the punishment you will put it through. The WATER RESISTANT seal will protect your watch when you irrigate fields, fix broken water systems, get milk splashed on your arm while feeding calves, or walk the fence in the rain, to find out where your cattle are getting out. Being SHOCK RESISTANT, your work watch will continue to work when it is slapped by a cow's tail, a falling board, or the belt shield that your arm slams against when your wrench slips off the bolt. While your watch is scraped by branches, rubbed against walls, and knocked against machinery, the low profile, SCRATCH RESISTANT, glass crystal will resist the scratches and cracks that render watches unreadable. Finally, the BATTERY POWERED QUARTZ movement of your work watch is accurate to within 2 minutes per year, and does not need to be wound, meaning that your watch will be on time, all the time, without any effort on your part.

A final proof of the strength of this watch and of its suitability to your needs is the warranty If your work watch stops running within THREE YEARS of the date of purchase, the manufacturer will repair or replace your watch at no charge This is one of the longest warranties in the watch industry. The manufacturer's confidence in this watch means that you can have confidence in its durability and can know that this is the only work watch you will need to buy for the next three years

Forestry Contest April 12

WILKES-BARRE (Luzerne Co.) — On Friday, April 12, The Northeast Pennsylvania Community Forestry Conference: Building Successful Tree Programs will begin to address community forestry issues and examine ways of reducing conflicts while maintaining healthy trees in Northeastern Pennsylvania.

The Northeast Pennsylvania Community Forestry Conference: Building Successful Tree Programs will be held at Ramada Plaza Hotel on the Square in Wilkes-Barre from 9 a.m. until about 4 p.m. and includes a buffet luncheon and a full packet of written materials as part of the $20 registration fee.

Many communities do not realize a full share of the benefits that can be provided by the urban forest resource. Community trees are becoming overmature, their vitality declining due to old age, improper maintenance, diseases and wounds from construction of structures, roads, sidewalks and utility lines. Deteriorating trees that are hazardous to people, property and utilities should be removed and replace with carefully selected species.

Opportunities to provide and manage community open space, wildlife, and volunteerism often are not recognized or utilizied. Communities can be supplied with information and support to assist in the development of comprehensive tree programs. These management programs can help restore, preserve and enhance beauty and quality of life in our communities.

This conference is sponsored by the Northeast Pennsylvania Community Tree Association and Penn State Cooperative Extension in cooperation with the Department of Conservation and Natural Resources, the Pennsylvania Urban and Community Forestry Council, and the Pennsylvania Environmental Council.

If you are a member of a shade tree commission, municipal manager, green industry professional, or an individual concerned about your community trees, then don't miss this conference.

For a registration flier of more information, call Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 825-1701.

COUNT ON SQUADRON®
FOR WEED CONTROL IN SOYBEANS

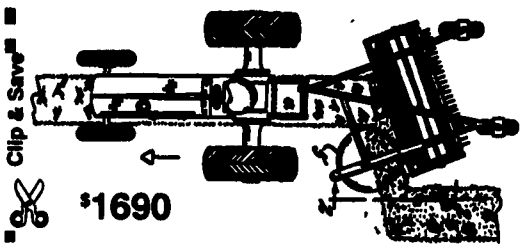
HAY B.R.A.T.T.



Clip & Save

$1690

HAY B.R.A.T.T.: Bar Rake Attached Turn Table is an attachment to existing hayrakes that catches a windrow at the top of the roll as it rolls off the hayrake carrying the windrow on a disc leaving it inverted, allowing the hay to dry faster.

DESCRIPTION
- The Hay B.R.A.T.T. is a disc driven by friction off the top of a single ground driven wheel mounted on a caster allowing alignment with the direction of travel
- The Hay B.R.A.T.T. was designed asymmetrical enabling the one model to be assembled for a right or left-hand delivery rake models so as to keep parts inventory low
- The Hay B.R.A.T.T. was designed to be self-cleaning and highly resistant to wrapping of hay The wheels position pulls the hay off the caster frame A loop guard prevents hay coming up the back of the tire The bearings are protected by shields
- Angle adjustments on the Hay B.R.A.T.T.'s disc are done by a single 3/4" wrench
- Two adjustable square tube frames support the caster of the Hay B.R.A.T.T allowing for rake and crop condition adjustments The ends can be changed for different rake models
- The mounting of the Hay B.R.A.T.T to the rake is done with 2 Hitchpins mounted on the rake frame using existing bolt holes This allows for quick attachment and removal of the Hay B R A T T
- The Hay B.R.A.T.T can be locked into a transport position and be suspended from the rake frame for road transport or storage
- Because of the position of the Hay B.R.A.T.T on the rake a 2 ft. 6 in extension to the front hitch of the rake is needed to provide clearance during turns

ADVANTAGES
- The Hay B.R.A.T.T. fully inverts the windrow, leaving it fluffed up and improves the drying of the hay.
- The Hay B.R.A.T.T. is ground driven and requires no hydraulic or PTO drives. It operates best at speeds from 3½ to 9 miles per hr. (the limit of most rakes).
- When raking swaths into a windrow a hay rake would roll the hay in to a tight rope like windrow. The Hay B.R.A.T.T bunches and carries the hay forming a fluffed up windrow allowing the hay to dry better
- The Hay B.R.A.T.T can be used to combine two windrows of a 6' or 9' haybine in one pass or a 12' or 14' haybine in two passes of opposite directions.
- Stone Removal is accomplished during the two directional changes of the windrow by the Hay B.R.A.T.T. The weight of the stones tend to resist the change of directions by the windrow, thereby throwing the stones clear of the windrow
- The Hay B.R.A.T.T will increase the demand on roll bar rakes especially the models that are 2'6" extension capable
- The Hay B.R.A.T.T can be installed on most roll bar rakes and cost less than most windrow inverters of today so demand will be great and should last as long as there are roll bar rakes around

CAPACITY KING

THE BIGGEST

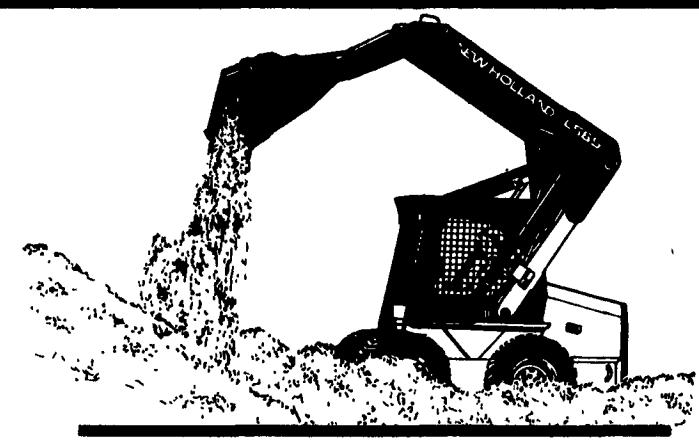
The New Holland Model 195 box spreader is up to your biggest spreading job.

- Capacity. The "195" takes on 410 bushels (440 cu. ft.) without flinching
- Strong construction. Corrosion-resistant steels last and last. And an HDPE floor means smooth unloading, even in cold weather.
- Bonded Protection warranty. If the polyethylene floor fails or the sides rust, we'll replace them free for 12 years.
- Fast clean out...even with this big-capacity strong box.
- Large tandem oscillating wheels. Allow faster ground speeds in rough terrain, with less ground compaction.

Check out our biggest New Holland Spreader from the biggest name in spreaders.

NEW HOLLAND

THE RELIABLE ONE



TOUGHER THAN THE REST

The New Holland Model L565 Super Boom™ skid-steer loader is tougher, more durable and more reliable than ever.

The "L565" offers a 40 horsepower diesel engine with an SAE load rating of a powerful 1,500 pounds.

The Pick Up 'n Go™ universal attachment system makes it compatible with New Holland and competitive attachments. The strong boom design and massive loader pins make it more reliable. And the quick engine access makes it easier to service.

See what makes the Super Boom so tough.

Great Serviceability!

Most Mix-All owners will never buy another.

Model MX125 And Model MX170

In fact, you'd probably have a hard time convincing Gehl Mix-All® owners to even look at anything else. And why should they?

The Mix-All's big 21-inch wide hammermill features 66 reversible thin hammers that cut, rather than pound the feed to deliver a more consistent grind and ensure uniform mixing for a better feed conversion rate.

Gehl's self-contained hydraulic system is designed-in, not added on. It provides the precision of infinitely variable in-feed attachment control to match tractor power for greater grinding capacity. Plus you get fast, smooth, trouble-free unloading with greater reliability.

And a wide variety of options and attachments lets you customize your Mix-All to fit any operation.

GEHL
Box Spreaders

Even when it's empty... it's loaded.

Low profile design means easy loading by skid loader, front end loader or barn cleaner.

Gehl-Tuff Flooring prevents the apron from freezing to the floor, allowing manure to slide out with little resistance. Less apron pull means less wear and tear on drives and apron chains. One piece construction won't flex under heavy loads.

Extra-strong, T-Bar apron chains with an average tensile strenght of over 23,500 pounds keep the biggest loads moving.

Double Galvanized steel sides are corrosion resistant for long life. One-piece seamless construction won't catch material or leak.

Optional hydraulic endgate rests in front of the beater paddles to secure sloppy loads and keep heaped material out of the beater unit you're ready to spread. An available litter pan reduces spills in the yard or roadway while enhancing the spread distribution.

Oscillating tandem wheels allow faster ground speeds while providing greater flotation. They're standard on the 325-bushel and 425-bushel models and optional on the 250-bushel model.

Twelve extra wide one-piece beater paddles are symmetrically positioned for broad, uniform spreads. Paddles are fabricated from tough, ¼" thick high strength steel. Bolt-on replacement tips are available to extend paddle life.

Constant velocity pto for continuous, smooth chatter-free power transfer when spreading on turns and reduced stress on the entire drive line.

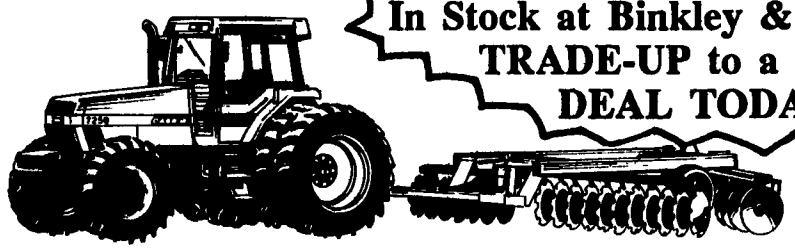
THE 7250 MAGNUM TRACTOR. CASE IH A PROVEN PERFORMER.

In Stock at Binkley & Hurst Bros. TRADE-UP to a SUPER DEAL TODAY!



There are more than 50,000 Case IH MAGNUM™ tractors working fields and farms around the world. And with over 65 million hours of rugged fieldwork behind them, they've proven what a difference durability, reliability and performance can make.

You'll feel that difference in the 7250 MAGNUM tractor, with a powerful 215 PTO hp. At the heart of the 7250 is its 8.3 L diesel engine — the definition of pure agricultural power. Not to mention the standard 18-speed full-powershift transmission that gives you complete control of 18 forward and four reverse speeds, as well as an optional creeper transmission that adds six forward and two reverse speeds.

Yet with all that performance, there is no shortage of comfort. The 7250 MAGNUM tractor cab means high efficiency and luxury. From the ergonomically designed seat to the operator-friendly layout of the controls, you're surrounded with features that make it easy to put in a full day's work.

If you're looking for a customer-proven tractor with all the features you need to maximize productivity, be sure to test drive the 7250 MAGNUM tractor. But don't just take our word for it.

Look At This, A Swing Frame 12-Foot Disc Mower Conditioner

CASE IH Proven & Tested To Customer Satisfaction.

The Case International 8312 disc mower conditioner just keeps on cutting – no matter what it encounters Tangled undergrowth, rodent mounds ant hills or heavy hay are no match for the heat-treated, high-speed rotary discs at the heart of the 8312

A center pivot tongue lets you cut a full 12-foot swath in either direction and maneuver around obstacles Lay down a quick-drying swath or fluffy windrow and, depending on your crop, conditioning rolls can be quickly adjusted for optimum drying

If continuous cutting with a center pivot machine is important to you stop in and see the Case International 8312

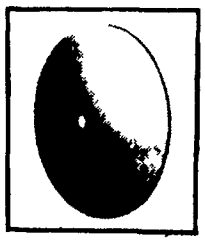
#1 CONSERVATION DISC In The EAST

Here's Three Reasons WHY They WORK On Eastern Farms — The Toughest Tillage Conditions In The U.S.

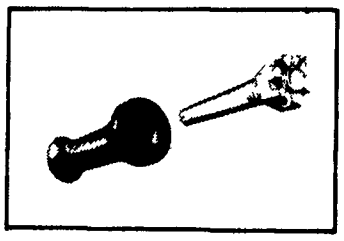
HEAVY-DUTY GANGS

Krause Invented The ROCK-FLEX BEARING SYSTEM.

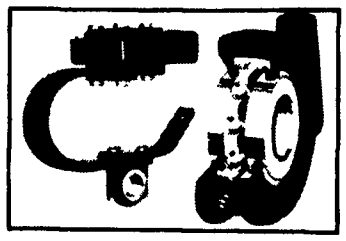
THE HEART OF THE GANG...



IMPACT RESISTANT DISC BLADES With 2.5" Concavity For CONSERVATION Residue Management



COLD-ROLLED Alloy Tie Rods With Nuts On Both Ends. DUCTILE IRON SPOOLS w/Machined Ends For Tight Fit



Regreasable BEARINGS Encased In RUBBER Inside A CAST-IRON Housing To Reduce Shock To The Bearings (2 YEAR BEARING WARRANTY)

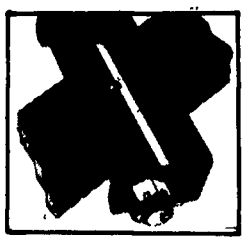
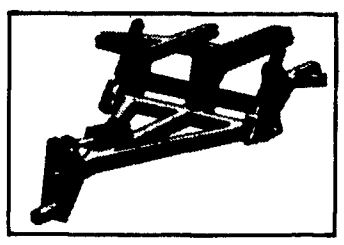
Krause Invented The FLEX-WING System That LEVELS YOUR FIELDS...



Big 1¼ "x15" wing hinge bolts in replaceable, hardened wear bushings. Grease zerk provided for lubrication. (4990 Series)

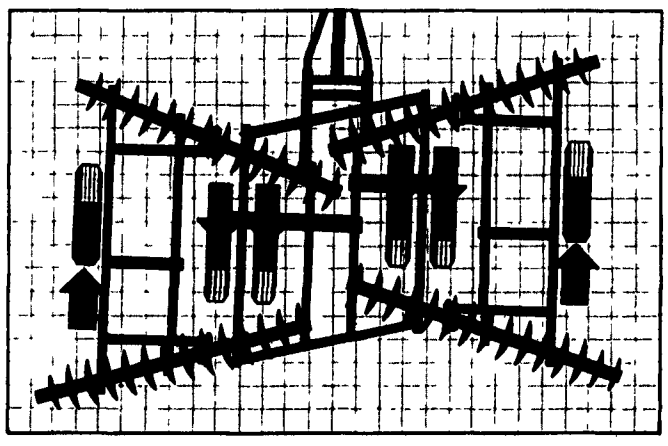
Super-strength frame with gang beams bolted to the underside of the frame for extra durability compared to integrated construction techniques where gangs are welded onto the frames.



Massive hitch is built for rugged field use, with a large 4"x4" steel center tube, and 2"x4" steel tube braces. (4900 Series)

UNIQUE WHEEL ARRANGEMENTS

(4900 Series)



This special wheel arrangement saves fuel by helping to prevent gouging.

In field position, the center wheels move backward as the wing wheels move forward — providing more uniform depth-gauging of front wing gangs. Heavy-duty, regreasable wheel hubs and big 10:00x15" 8-ply tires are standard equipment.

PERFORMANCE IN THE FIELD — Cutting, Finishing, Or Residue Management: KRAUSE DISCS CUT IT!

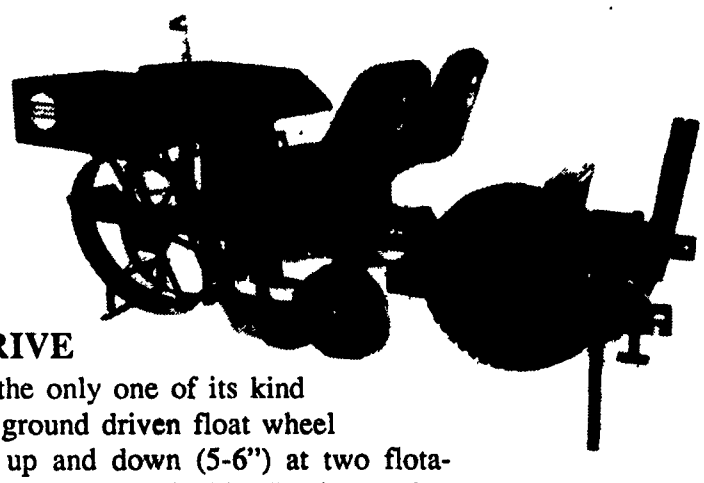
MECHANICAL TRANSPLANTER MODEL 1000

For The Grower That Demands The "VERY FINEST"

The High Performance Model 1000

has increased planting speeds 20 to 30%.



OUR PATENTED FLOAT WHEEL DIRECT DRIVE SYSTEM is the only one of its kind available. This ground driven float wheel moves straight up and down (5-6") at two flotation points. This patented double floating action maintains correct ground contact at all times for both the drive wheel and rear packing wheels letting the units float independently no matter how many rows. No weight of any hitch, toolbar, or water tank is resting on the drive wheel to compact the soil. The wheel just smooths, firms and ideally prepares the soil providing accurate plant placement, proper depth control, and positive spacings from 6" and up in all soil conditions.
